Milk Arbiter Here Linked To 'Combine'

Independents Say Official Sought Price-Fixing Pact in D. C.

Samuel M. Shoemaker, chairman of the board of regents of University of Maryland, who suggested appointment of Dr. Clyde L. King as local milk price arbitrator, received a dividend on June 16 on 2,398 shares of common stock in the National Dairy Products Corporation.

Mr. Shoemaker's name was included in a list of stockholders of the corporation submitted to Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee. Seal will call the Maryland educator as a witness when hearings are resumed in October.

King Under Fire.

A charge of attempted price-fixing in the Washington milk shed was leveled against Dr. King by independent milk distributors. Before the Senate committee they charged he had sought a price agreement between producers and distributors.

The common stock holdings of Shoemaker are about three-fourths of similar holdings of Thomas H. McInnerney, president of the corporation. In June, McInnerney received dividends of approximately $1,000. Shoemaker received $715.

Dr. King is now milk adviser to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. He arbitrates marketing agreements between producers and distributors in the larger cities.

Wide Field Covered.

The National Dairy Products Corporation controls 60 per cent of the Washington milk distribution and 90 per cent of the milk in the Baltimore market. In addition it has dairy holdings in every State of the union.

The Senate committee is attempting to learn whether a "milk trust" exists in the District. The investigation is the result of a series of articles in The Post which disclosed evidence of an apparent monopoly.

In addition to his position in the University of Maryland, Shoemaker also is a member of the Maryland State Board of Agriculture, a former president of Maryland State College before its merger with the University of Maryland, and is head of the Baltimore County Board of Education. He lives in Eccleston, Md.

Roosevelt Off Tammany Row

Plan for Third Mayoralty Candidate Setback by President's Stand.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—A movement by independent Democrats to enter a third candidate in the New York mayoralty contest received a setback today in a White House announcement that the Roosevelt administration would not take a hand in local politics.

The word, however, did not entirely stop talk of drafting Joseph V. McKee, acting mayor after the resignation of James J. Walker, or some other prominent citizen to oppose Mayor John P. O'Brien and Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the fusion nominee.

Grover A. Whalen, who declined to be a candidate, again was mentioned in talk of a third party, as was U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Leaders hoping to draft McKee said they would rather have him substituted for Mayor O'Brien on the Democratic ticket than to risk a third ticket.

Livermore Kidnap Plot Told by Slayer Suspect

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—James Walsh, held in the Orange County Jail on a charge of murder on the high seas, admitted to police today that he and his alleged victim, Buell Dawson, talked over a plan to kidnap E. L. Doheny and Jesse Livermore.

Walsh, who reportedly confessed to killing Lawson aboard the gambling ship Johanna Smith, anchored off Long Beach, was put on probation a month ago by a San Francisco judge after he had been charged with breaking into the Colma postoffice.

Snow Fall of 18 Inches Attends Storm in West

Yakima, Wash., Sept. 22 (AP).—Eighteen inches of snow fell in the Tipsoe Lake district, Washington, today and the storm spread to Montana, with Helena reporting a 40-degree temperature and snow this afternoon. The mercury dropped to 38 at Havre, Mont.

Snow plows were used to clear Naches highway to Seattle. A 25-mile an hour wind swept the lower Yakima Valley, blowing off ripe fruit.

Defense Fights For Urschel Case Dismissal

Score of Motions Offered as Prosecution Rests in Kidnaping Trial.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 22 (AP).—Four days of pounding at the 12 persons accused of conspiring in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil man, ended late today as the Government rested and the defense began its counter-offensive.

James H. Mathers, counsel for Harvey Bailey, hastened to offer almost a score of motions to dismiss the charges on the ground the Government had failed to connect Bailey definitely with the kidnaping.

D. C. Patterson, Oklahoma City, handwriting expert, was the last prosecution witness. He identified specimens of Albert Bates' signature in a final attempt of the prosecution to connect Bates, a defendant, with seven men from Minneapolis and St. Paul, in an alleged conspiracy to dispose of the $200,000 paid for Urschel's freedom.

Attorneys for seven Minneapolis and St. Paul defendants said late today they would "put on no defense."

"We will rest on the law, satisfied the Government has not made a case against our clients," said A. M. Cary, their attorney.

Judge Vaught confused the defense by ruling Government testimony on disposition of the $200,000 ransom was admissible as evidence.

Judge Vaught's ruling set a precedent, as the Urschel trial is the first under the new "Lindbergh" law passed by Congress last year.

Bailey Freed for $10,000.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 22 (AP).—The Dallas Times-Herald says it has learned that Harvey Bailey, on trial at Oklahoma City for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, purchased his release from the Dallas County Jail on Labor Day for a promised price of $10,000.

Navy Planes to Fly Nonstop to Hawaii

Six planes, or possibly 12, will participate.

Bank's Third Head Dies by Own Hand

Terre Haute Trust Trio End Lives in 3 Years.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 22 (AP). Walter Rahel, 45, president of the Terre Haute Trust Co., ended his life today in the basement of his home with a shotgun.

He is the third president of the bank to commit suicide within three years. James P. Royse killed himself while president three years ago. A year and a half later James S. Cooper, successor to Royse, ended his life.

The bank has been operating on a restricted basis since last February.

Chile Bans Foreigners From Its Possessions

Buenos Aires, Sept. 22 (AP).—A dispatch from Ushuia, Argentina, the world's southernmost city, said today Chilean officials had ordered foreigners to abandon Navarino Island, at the tip of South America, belonging to Chile.

The dispatch ascribed the order to Chilean apprehension that the population, mostly shepherds and fishermen, and predominantly Argentine, might imperil Chilean citizenship.

Cuban Rebels Start Warfare In Two Sectors

Grau San Martin Agrees to Limit Power in Proposal to Foes.

Havana, Sept. 22 (AP).—Armed rebellion flared tonight in at least two sectors against the government of President Ramon Grau San Martin. Rebel forces were reported in the adjacent province of Matanzas.

While his best political minds sought to find a way out of the deadlock between Grau San Martin and his leading opponents, the army of students and soldiers sought to suppress the outbreak.

A proposal to settle the political situation was submitted to opposition factions.

It was said to include a provision that Grau San Martin remain as chief executive but with sharply restricted powers, including one that he could not demand the resignation of cabinet members.

The plan also was said to provide for a concentration cabinet, responsible to an opposition junta representing all factions.

Rebels estimated to number 800 were reported moving through Matanzas Province, cutting communication lines as they headed for Colon, in the center of the province.

Hull Awaits Reply.

Still worried over the safety of this country's nationals in Cuba, State Department officials last night awaited the outcome of protests to Island authorities over the looting of an American citizen's home near Havana, the Associated Press reported.

Secretary Hull said the looting occurred Thursday night.

Series Seats Are Offered By Scalpers

Protected by License Minus Tickets, They Set Up Booths.

Ask $60 Per Pair for Boxes; Fans Selling Are Warned.

Hardly had the echo of that last putout by Heinie Manush faded out of Griffith Stadium on Thursday before the vanguard of an influx of nattily attired ticket sharks from the gay white belt of New York set themselves up along Washington streets as full-fledged world series ticket scalpers.

Renting space in two stores on downtown Fourteenth street, and operating under Internal Revenue licenses, the ticket hawkers hung out blatant oilcloth signboards announcing to this unsuspecting city that world series tickets were being "bought, sold and exchanged."

As yet they are unable to make good on their advertisement, inasmuch as the first tickets will not be distributed by the Washington Club until Tuesday, but everything is in readiness for a land-office business to cater to the pennant-mad fans of Washington—at a price.

Prices Are High.

And the prices are high with these high-pressure salesmen. They will take your order for a pair of box seats for the three local games for $60. At Griffith Stadium ball park officials are marketing these same tickets to the fortunate fans for $39.60.

The $5.50 grand-stand seats, which sell at Griffith Stadium for $33 the pair for the three games, are costing $40 at the scalpers' offices. The $3.30 bleacher seats, selling at Griffith Stadium for $17.60 per pair for three games, bring a flat $25 from the scalpers.

They are operating within the law, the scalpers, but they are depending on purchases from the fortunate fans who are allotted tickets, to provide their stock in trade. They are depending, too, on their own applications submitted early to the ball park office under a variety of names.

Stadium Warns Buyers.

But here's the rub! Edward B. Eynon, jr., in charge of ticket sales at Griffith Stadium, warns the baseball-minded public who wish to see the World Series that "any repurchased ticket will not be honored at the gates and admission refused." There will be revenue men at every turnstile to see that the proper stamping of overcharged prices is on the pasteboards.

Eynon further advises that only those applications with checks attached will be accepted at ticket headquarters. In this way the original ticket purchaser's name and address will be turned over to the Government inspectors. Any fan selling the ticket allotted him at a price above face value is liable to

North Dakota Favors Beer

Early Election Returns Approve 3.2 Brew and Sunday Movies.

Fargo, N. Dak., Sept. 22 (AP).—A bill to permit sale of 3.2 per cent beer in North Dakota was favored by about two to one in early returns tonight from a State-wide special election.

Returns from 76 of the 2,240 precincts was 5,241 in favor of beer, and 2,576 against. Most returns were from urban districts. North Dakota has been dry since Statehood in 1889.

A proposal to allow Sunday motion-picture shows was leading by a scant margin, 75 precincts showing 3,583 in favor of and 3,570 against. Sunday pictures and stage shows have been banned since 1911.

Measure to impose a 2 per cent sales tax was far behind.

Spurn Bootleg Bargains of Tax Dodgers Fighting Code, He Pleads.

Announcing the Government is determined to prevent gasoline price wars, Secretary Ickes last night appealed to motorists to guard against buying low-priced petroleum products.

Purchase of cut-rate oils and gasoline, he warned, may be direct aid to persons dealing in products illegally produced or sold.

"The industry and public are called upon to comply with the code," he said.

He cited as objectives the discouragement and abolition of "destructive price wars" and the guarding against "trafficking with tax evaders and dealers in products produced in excess of allocations."

"The code provides marketing rules for the purpose of eliminating unfair and unhealthy practices which have prevailed in the industry," he continued.

"Among these practices are price wars during which gasoline is sold below cost. These practices must stop in the interest of all. Price wars can not be justified for the purpose of driving out competition; nor can they be justified when waged by tax evaders and purchasers of bootleg products to destroy a stable market."

Roosevelt Begins Cruise on 2 Rivers

Crowd at Fredericksburg Sees Him Embark.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 22 (AP). President Roosevelt sailed from here tonight aboard the Government yacht Sequoia for a week-end cruise on the Rappahannock and Potomac Rivers.

He was accompanied by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, of Washington; Judge Samuel T. Rosenman, of New York, and Mrs. Rosenman, and Miss Marguerite Lehand, his secretary.

Ford Puts 50,000 Employes Under Auto Code Hours

Detroit, Sept. 22 (AP).—Henry Ford, the country's biggest holdout from the NRA, moved today to place his 50,000 employes—now working 40 hours a week—on a work week to comply with the 35-hour maximum provided in the NRA automobile code, which Ford has not, and, it is indicated, will not sign.

Employes were notified that, beginning Monday, they will be placed on a 32-hour week, but company officials indicated that after six weeks the 40-hour week would be resumed for such a period as will provide average employment at the rate of 35-hours a week. An official announcement is expected next week.

The Ford minimum wage already is above the 43-cents-an-hour minimum demanded by the NRA automobile code. Officials of the company have stated the "lowest wage we would consider paying to any Ford employe" is 50 cents an hour.

Farmers Act To Call Strike If Codes Fail

Ask Labor Aid in Fight to Compel Action by Roosevelt.

Des Moines, Sept. 22 (AP).—The National Farmers Holiday Association today voted unanimously to declare a farm strike on all products and to ask the cooperation of labor if the administration does not comply with its demands, embodied in NRA codes.

The conference, attended by 1,200 persons, representing 18 States, adopted a resolution which declared:

"We recommend that the board of directors of the National Farmers Holiday Association appoint a committee to present these terms to the President, and, if he fails to comply, we will withhold all farm products from the market, and we direct all State organizations to hold a strike call in readiness."

Seek 10-Hour Day.

The code for agriculture, adopted by the meeting, called for a guarantee of cost-of-production prices on agricultural products, a maximum work day of 10 hours, except in cases of extreme emergency, and the setting of wages by the American Federation of Labor.

The demands to be made upon the President and the Recovery Administration were: Cost of production in conformity with the agricultural code; a definite and specific pledge that Congress will enact the Frazier bill at the next regular session; immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus by a currency issue, and immediate use of inflation power of the President.

Mortgage Aid Asked.

The Frazier bill, introduced in Congress by Senator Frazier, of North Dakota, provides for Government refinancing of farm mortgages at 1½ per cent interest and 1½ per cent amortization each year, the cost to be paid through the issuance of currency.

A final resolution called for an investigation by the Federal Government of practices on the Chicago Board of Trade and requested that the President make public names of "short sellers."

Borah Asserts NRA Hinges on Inflation

Declares Move Vital to Bolster Farm Prices.

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 22 (AP).—Senator William E. Borah today declared "inflation is indispensable to the success of the NRA," in a telegram to the Public Relations Bureau of the Recovery Administration, accepting an invitation to speak in its behalf in Washington later this year.

"If I can contribute in any way whatever to the success of NRA, I want to do so," he added.

"But farm prices and the problems they present convince me that inflation is indispensable to the success of the NRA. I should want to feel free to discuss inflation as a part of the program."

Iceland Votes Oct. 21 On Abolishing Dry Law

Reykjavik, Iceland, Sept. 22 (U.P.). The government today called a national referendum on abolition of prohibition, to be held October 21.

Wet supporters were confident the example of the United States in moving to end prohibition would influence the result in Iceland.

Navy Blocks Arrest Of Officer in Crash

Colon, C. Z., Sept. 22 (AP).—District Judge R. C. P. Thomas today issued a bench warrant for the arrest of Lieut. John Henry Cross on a charge of involuntary manslaughter as the result of an auto crash, but naval authorities refused to permit service of the warrant.

Canal Zone naval authorities previously had refused to deliver the lieutenant to civil authorities for trial.

U. S. Plans to Release Billions in Shut Banks; Relief Work Widened

Fund to Feed and Clothe Needy Will Run Far Over $75,000,000.

Program to Be Mapped on Long-Term Basis; Loan for Cotton.

(Associated Press.)

Outlay for President Roosevelt's program for buying surplus farm commodities and distributing them to families on relief rolls may greatly exceed, during the current fiscal year, the $75,000,000 in purchases originally planned, Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials said yesterday.

The program also will be organized on a long-term instead of a purely temporary basis, it was revealed, as officials hastened establishment of an organization determined to have it ready to turn over products to the Federal Relief Administration within a week.

President Roosevelt is considering purchase of coal by the Government to supplement his plan to buy surpluses in beef, dairy and poultry products, cotton and cottonseed for delivery to the needy.

Loan for Cotton Growers.

For immediate relief of cotton growers, the President approved in principle a loan of 10 cents a pound to growers on this year's crop, conditional upon an agreement to limit the 1934 crop to 25,000,000 bales.

Indicative of the predicted increase in purchases over the $75,000,000 announced Thursday, George N. Peek, chief administrator of the farm act, said substantial portions of the proceeds of processing taxes on basic farm commodities would be made available to finance purchases, supplementing Federal relief funds.

Officials look upon the relief outlet as an opportunity to take up the slack in disposition of American farm products resulting from fall in exports. Meanwhile, they will continue efforts to push sales abroad.

Secretary Wallace designated three men to direct the program—Gen. W. I. Westervelt, director of marketing and processing; Chester C. Davis, production director, and Dr. L. H. Bean, economic adviser of the A. A. A.

The first surplus products to be

Byrns Predicts Repeal Tax Cut

Urges Speedy Action by Congress When Liquor Assumes Burden.

Shifting of part of the taxpayers' huge burden as result of repeal was predicted last night by Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee, Democratic leader of the House. He is in Washington for a few days on "personal business."

Forecasting ratification "by Thanksgiving," Mr. Byrns said he favored study by the Ways and Means Committee as soon as Congress returns to determine what taxes might be curtailed because of liquor revenues. He would like to see the 1-cent a gallon Federal tax on gasoline revoked.

He believes the annual combined revenue from liquor and beer will be far below the $700,000,000 total generally estimated.

Representative Byrns saw a possibility that additional bank legislation may be necessary in January to create new credit facilities for the small merchant.

He said he favored "controlled inflation," exercised within powers granted the President under the recovery act, "but only when necessary." Controlled inflation, he said, might help to advance agricultural more nearly to a par with manufactured products.

Gotham Loan Plan Fails at Conference

City's Dilemma Remains, Despite Lehman's Aid.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—The city's financial dilemma remained unsolved tonight—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, city officials and bankers having failed again to reach an agreement on a $72,000,000 loan to the city.

For four hours Gov. Lehman, Mayor John P. O'Brien and bankers debated the city's finances. Lehman, acting as financial arbiter, said the conferences would be resumed Monday.

Mayor O'Brien spiked a report that the city would abandon the program for raising of $40,000,000 in new taxes.

Fatigue Compels Schwab to Seek Rest in Hospital

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has retired to Doctors' Hospital for a complete rest, it became known today.

A statement by the hospital said the steel magnate, who is 71, was suffering from fatigue. He entered the hospital last week.

Bank to Repay $1,030,601.70 To Depositors

Commercial National to Refund 20 Per Cent Next Tuesday.

A total of $1,030,601.70, representing 20 per cent of proved claims, will be paid depositors of the closed Commercial National Bank next Tuesday. It will be the first payment received since the bank closed, February 28.

In its last report to the Comptroller of the Currency, December 31, the bank had deposits of $11,302,625.56. Heavy withdrawals were given as reason for closing.

Approved by O'Connor.

Announcement of the first payment was made yesterday after Robert C. Baldwin, receiver, had received authorization from Comptroller O'Connor.

An appeal to the District Supreme Court to compel the Treasury Department to permit reopening of the United States Savings Bank is being renewed by Col. Wade H. Cooper, the president.

In a telegram to President Roosevelt, he characterized as "astounding incompetency" the failure of the Treasury Department to approve reopening of his bank.

Plan Being Studied.

The bank's reopening plan is being studied by Gibbs Lyons, deputy comptroller of the currency. Details of the plan have not been made public.

It is understood the plan provides for immediate release of 65 per cent of the deposits and an ultimate payment of the remaining 35 per cent out of the bank's earnings.

Hurricane Moves Toward Yucatan

Terrific Wind Increasing; Port City Cut Off.

Merida, Mexico, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—The first force of a tropical storm expected to reach hurricane proportions was felt on the Yucatan Peninsula late today. A terrific wind blowing in from the Gulf of Mexico and a driving rain increased as night approached.

Communications between this city and Progreso, the peninsula's chief port, were cut off and coastwise shipping near Progreso steamed hurriedly for that port.

Mexico City, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—The Pan-American Airways passenger plane from Mexico City to Merida was unable to reach that city late today because of heavy winds on the Yucatan Peninsula. The plane turned back.

HornHonkingCosts Mrs. Chewning $2

Couzens' Daughter Plans to Abandon Battle.

Horn-honking at Falls Church won't get Mrs. Margo Couzens Chewning, daughter of Senator James Couzens, Michigan, into the town court tonight after all. She decided it was worth $2 to let the incident drop.

Her attorney, John C. Mackall, announced he was posting that amount as collateral on Mrs. Chewning's summons and would forfeit it.

Previously her husband, William Jeffries Chewning, said he would fight the case because he believed she was being persecuted.

The trouble started when Mrs. Chewning got into a controversy with Mayor L. P. Daniel, of Falls Church, about blowing her horn when traffic was halted by fire apparatus.

Monaco Ruler in Move To Head Off Pretender

Monte Carlo, Sept. 22 (AP).—Court circles said tonight Prince Louis, ruler of Monaco, intends soon to reinstate his daughter, Princess Charlotte, as hereditary heir to the throne until the latter's son, Prince Rainier, is 21 years old.

The reinstatement, it said, is intended to block claims of Count Aynard de Chabrillon, pretender to the throne.

Statement of Program to Help Depositors Expected Soon.

Prompt Action Forecast After Woodin Confers With Roosevelt.

By Elliott Thurston.

Announcement in four or five days of a comprehensive Government plan to aid depositors in closed banks throughout the country was forecast at the White House yesterday.

Secretary of the Treasury Woodin will arrive here Sunday night to discuss the general banking situation with President Roosevelt.

It was indicated an announcement of policy on releasing deposits tied up in closed banks might be expected immediately thereafter.

Under the President's instructions, Treasury and Reconstruction Finance Corporation experts have been at work on a plan to "unfreeze" bank deposits. An important Treasury authority predicted yesterday the plan being evolved would be put into execution.

General Plan Bared.

Its exact nature is a matter of much speculation, but, broadly, it contemplates feleasing as much as 40 or 50 per cent of the depositor funds that remain inaccessible in banks unable to reopen under previous reorganization and reopening plans.

Just how far it will go, whether it will affect banks closed since the start of the depression, or merely those unopened after the March banking holiday, and whether funds are to be supplied entirely through the R. F. C., are questions awaiting official decision.

Pressure on the administration to pay off closed-bank depositors has been increasing. Inflationists in Congress and out have harped upon this theme, arguing stimulation of purchasing power would result and greatly accelerate business and industry under NRA codes.

Dollar Plea Subordinated.

The committee for the Nation, composed of a large group of business men and industrialists, with a scattering of bankers, recently has subordinated its original plea for gold dollar devaluation to concentrate on the objective of paying off closed-bank victims.

Similarly the national depositors' committee, in which former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer has been a moving spirit, has campaigned steadily for a much broader plan of depositor relief than has been involved in the bank reorganizing methods so far pursued by the Treasury and R. F. C.

The administration also has been subjected increasingly to critical fire from inflationists of the Elmer Thomas school, who are impatient because the President has avoided using "greenbacking" and other inflationist powers conferred on him in the Thomas amendment.

Moreover, the NRA's accumulating difficulties, lamentations from the agrarian sections that farm income is not keeping pace with outgo necessitated by rising prices, resist-

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 22 (AP).—An escaped prisoner who kidnaped an unidentified man, woman and child was sought in Tazewell County tonight.

After stealing the revolver of Deputy Sheriff Henry Donnewald, the prisoner fled jail in the officer's automobile. Forcing one motorist to drive him several miles, the gunman then covered the occupants of a second car and continued his flight.

Income Taxes Reduce Deficit By $54,000,000

Woodin Expects Treasury to Report First Surplus Reserve Since 1930.

(Associated Press.)

Feeling at last the withering influence of income-tax collections, the deficit for the current fiscal year is shrinking.

In the six days from September 14 to September 20 it fell from $246,000,000 to $192,000,000, a drop of $54,000,000. Treasury officials estimate $40,000,000 of September income-tax collections are still to be reported.

Daily statements of the Treasury also are showing a surplus for the month thus far. It stood at $36,000,000 September 20, the last date reported, while the comparable period of a year ago showed expenditures running $102,000,000 above receipts.

He would not be surprised, he has said, if the result is the first surplus since 1930. All the categories of revenue are trending upward, he said, and he expects great improvement in income-tax collections when March and June payments fall due.

The Treasury made public internal revenue receipts for August, showing $149,707,708 collected, as against $130,732,608 for July and $79,940,310 for August, 1932.

Beer taxes jumped $630,549, to $15,049,564 for August, as against $14,219,015 for July. Gasoline-tax receipts rose from $15,799,053 to $22,420,634. Gains were shown as well in tax collections on cigars, cigarettes, capital stock, dividends and other classifications.

Couzens Again Assails Banks

Third Statement Urges Public to Aid Expose of Hidden Facts.

Detroit, Sept. 22 (AP).—United States Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, is going to carry to the floor of the Senate several aspects of this city's banking situation which he finds objectionable.

In his third public statement since the termination of the one-man grand jury, which for three months investigated the closing of two national banks here, the senator today urged a "united, intelligent and militant public opinion" to bring to light facts behind the closing of the banks.

"In my nearly 20 years of public life I have not stood upon dignity in my efforts to eradicate evils in industry, banking and public service," said the senator.

"I do not now propose to stand on dignity and thereby prevent any possible remedies there may be to preclude a recurrence of these unfortunate conditions."

Demand for Bonus Sent to President

V. F. W. Leader Asks for Special Session.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt was presented yesterday with the legislative program of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, calling for immediate payment of the bonus.

James E. Van Zandt, commander in chief, in presenting the program, asked a special session of Congress to enact it.

He expressed satisfaction with the policy of the administration in its review of veterans' cases under the economy act.

Administrator Frank T. Hines of veterans affairs accompanied Van Zandt to the White House and reported to the President that of 8,400 cases so far reviewed, the board had allowed 42 per cent of the veterans to remain on the Federal compensation rolls.

Druggists Ignore Liquor Sale Issue

Counsel Hits Accusation of Monopoly Plans.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—The National Association of Retail Druggists, closing their annual convention today, voted not to commit itself on the problem of liquor distribution. W. Bruce Philip, of San Francisco, general counsel, said:

"We have been accused of lobbying for a monopoly in the dispensation of hard liquor when and if repeal comes. Our action here scotches such a suspicion, because as a national body we are officially ignoring the question of liquor sales."

Hoosiers Plan Legion Fight on Violent Crime

Indianapolis, Sept. 22 (AP).—Indiana Legionaires have decided to bring before the forthcoming national convention of the American Legion at Chicago a resolution pledging the organization to a policy of defense against crimes of violence.

The resolution would authorize the national commander to appoint a committee of 15 to report to the national executive committee on such a plan.

Nurse's Murder Trial Waits.

Santa Cruz, Calif., Sept. 22 (AP).—Miss Wilhelmina Weltz, nurse, charged with murdering of her former employer, Francis J. M. Grace, member of a prominent San Francisco shipping family, was arraigned here today, but time for pleading was continued until next Friday.

Holland Can Use "Dictator" Like Roosevelt, Says Visitor

Holland, with other small Old World countries, finds itself in need of individual leadership such as exists in the United States in the person of President Roosevelt, Henricus Nijgh, publisher of the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, leading liberal newspaper of the Netherlands, said yesterday on his arrival for a brief visit.

"A dictatorship would be of great value to my country," said Mr. Nijgh. "Unfortunately, our political parties are unable to agree upon such a leader.

Makes No Comparison.

"Of course," the stout, genial publisher hastened to add, with a smile, "I would not compare your President Roosevelt with Hitler, or Mussolini, or Dollfuss. But the theory of dictatorship—applied as it is in the United States, for the benefit of the greatest number—would be of inestimable help to the Netherlands."

People of the Netherlands, Mr. Nijgh said, are following with interest, through news dispatches, progress of the NRA. In Holland the Clerical party is in power, with a former business man at the helm.

Brings Subscribers.

The Rotterdam publisher, who is at the Carlton Hotel, said he came to this country with a party of subscribers to his newspaper, an annual trip sponsored by the Nieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant. The Century of Progress was the party's main objective, but for the fair Mr. Nijgh had less than the customary enthusiasm.

"It seemed a bit inclined toward the commercial said," he suggested. "Mr. Dawes told me it was not desired to spend too much money upon the purely administrative buildings. The lavishness was left to the firms which would make of the fair an advertisement for their products—and from them it has taken its character."

Arms Accord By "Big Four" Reported Near

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP).—Close approach to general agreement between the United States, France, Great Britain and Italy for limitation and control of armaments, it was authoritatively learned, was made today in talks between negotiators of the first three powers.

A French official reported substantial progress had been made toward forming a solid front at resumption of the world disarmament conference.

United States Rejects Penalties.

France has been advocating penalties for breach of any disarmament agreement. Great Britain was understood to be holding back.

Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at Large, told both French and British representatives the United States will not join in imposing such penalties.

France, it was said, showed a willingness for her great army to be substantially reduced step by step in line with conversion of the German Reichswehr (standing army) into a militia.

American quarters said there are "a lot of hurdles yet," but the European situation has becomes so serious it is bringing about decisions."

Major problems remaining to be solved at Geneva, in addition to the sanctions question, were the method and duration of arms supervision; the number of troops the MacDonald disarmament plan accords France and Italy for their colonies, and military aviation.

France Wants More Time.

France is reported as believing it impossible to accomplish a transition program within a year, as suggested by the British.

The French hope an accord can be completed, with Germany's approval, before October 9, allowing drafting of a treaty to begin when the conference reconvenes at Geneva, October 16.

It was said negotiators had agreed to a three or four years' duration for each of the disarmament periods.

Move to Foreign Office.

In addition to Davis, those participating in the day's conference were Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary; Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, and Lord Tyrrell, the British ambassador, who gave a luncheon at his embassy. Stanley Baldwin, British cabinet minister, vacationing in France, was one of the guests.

French and British representatives then moved to the foreign office, where they went into conference with Davis, Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister to Switzerland; Allan Dulles, a member of Mr. Davis' party, and J. Theodore Marriner, American Embassy counselor.

Claire Windsor "Flame" Sought for Bad Check

San Francisco, Sept. 22 (AP).—A warrant for arrest of Alfred C. Read, jr., former Oakland broker who figured in the recent alienation suit of his divorced wife, Marian, against Claire Windsor, actress, was sworn out today charging issuance of a worthless check.

R. J. Beban, vice president of the Varney Air Lines, alleged Reed gave a bad check last March for $36.11 for passage between here and Los Angeles.

Lower Rates On Joint Hauls Urged to I. C. C.

(Associated Press.)

General downward revision of rates on freight hauled partly by both railroad and water across the Great Lakes was recommended yesterday to the Interstate Commerce Commission by two of its examiners.

William J. Koebel and Arthur S. Parker advocated that the commission reject revision of a large group of rates proposed by railroads and substitute an even lower series, especially to cities in the Northwest and between those cities and the East.

The railroad proposal resulted from general revision of Eastern and Western freight rates more than a year ago. The examiners also recommended division of the East and portions of the West into three groups, for rate-making purposes.

Eastern groups would take in virtually the entire Eastern portion of the country from Winchester, Va., to the Canadian border. The Western areas would consist of Illinois, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Michigan, Minnesota and South Dakota.

The examiners found rates on dairy products, treated separately, should be 60 per cent of the Class 1 Lake-rail rates recommended for a minimum carload of 20,000 pounds.

An arbitrary rate of 3 cents for 100 pounds was fixed if freight is hauled from the dock to any point within the same city.

The report said maximum reasonable rates over Lake-rail routes between Lake Superior points and cities in the East should be 15 cents lower than new rates being considered to New England and 10 cents lower to portions of Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio and Virginia.

Nonunion Miners Included in Code

President Appends Proviso and Signs Pact.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt late yesterday approved the coal wage agreement with a qualifying provision extending it to nonunion as well as union workers.

This provision read:

"In approving this agreement, it is with the understanding that the hours, wages and conditions of employment recited herein may also be applied to employes not parties hereto; and that the requirement of section 7 (a) of the National industrial recovery act will be complied with in carrying out this agreement."

Girls Good Life Guards; Town Will Hire More

Philadelphia, Sept. 22 (AP). The experiment of Wildwood, N. J., in hiring several young women as life guards was so successful that the mayor—also a woman—says she will put more girls on the beaches next summer.

Addressing the Quota Club last night, Mayor Doris Bradway said the experiment was "very, very satisfactory."

Cotton Loans To Be Granted If Yield Is Cut

U. S. Will Give 10 Cents Per Pound; "Hands Off" Asked on Tobacco.

Cotton relief plans, involving loans of 10 cents a pound to growers of this year's crop were announced yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Simultaneously a spokesman for the largest domestic buyers of flue-cured tobacco was brusquely inviting the Government to keep its hands off that product.

Cotton loans, approved "in principle" by President Roosevelt, with a proviso for reduction of next year's production to 25,000,000 bales, were seen as part of a definite campaign to counteract Southern farmers' inflation demands by giving them direct benefits instead.

Loans were approved by the President only on the condition that the producer will abide by the acreage reduction plan for 1934.

This 1934 program is an extension of one recently put into effect, whereby farmers plowed under part of this year's crop. County agents will start in October to sign up the planters for next year's program.

Loans will be made only when the cotton is actually in the hands of the producers.

President Roosevelt's approval of immediate and long-term aid for the Southern farmer was given yesterday at a conference with Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, leader of the Southern cotton conference; Secretary Wallace and George Peek, agricultural administrator.

Meanwhile, another branch of the farm administration, which had written a marketing agreement binding domestic and export buyers and giving the Secretary of Agriculture virtual power to fix prices, as well as to examine the books of tobacco concerns, struck a snag at yesterday's formal hearing.

S. Clay Williams, president of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., assailed the Government's program and offered a substitute. He told the farm adjustment administration the largest buyers of domestic flue-cured tobacco would pay an average of 17 cents a pound up to March 31 next, if the Government would keep its hands off, meantime.

Williams argued the Government's plan would not bind companies to buy any tobacco whatever, and would place tobacco manufacturers "under Government control."

In addition to paying an average of 17 cents a pound, Williams said the companies he represented would buy, between September 25 and March 31, "at least the number of pounds of flue-cured tobacco of the 1933 crop that they used during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933."

Among other companies, Mr. Williams said he represented P. Lorillard, Liggett & Myers, Brown & Williamson, Philip Morris and the American Tobacco Co.

$75,000,000 Relief To Start in Week distributed will be pork acquired by the farm agency in its emergency program for reducing the number of swine on farms because of a shortage of feed.

Montana to Get First Aid.

First pork shipments will go to Montana with four carloads of 30,000 pounds each, requested by relief authorities at Butte. Another carload has been requested at Billings. Shipments are to be made within a week.

Approximately 20,000,000 pounds of pork will have been cured within the next two weeks and will be ready for shipment. Shipments to other points will be started within ten days. In all, about 100,000,000 pounds of pork will be available.

Purchases of dairy products, beef, and cotton products will be started as soon as arrangements for distribution are completed by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator. A processing tax on dairy products is under consideration, and some purchases from this fund may be made and coupled with production-control plans now being worked out for that industry.

Attack Double-Barreled.

Peek said the program "is a real attack on the dual problem of people in need of food and oversupplies on farms." He said supplies distributed would be in addition to sums being spent by local relief agencies.

He announced that in approving marketing agreements covering fluid milk distribution in metropolitan milksheds, he would authorize sales to relief agencies at below fixed prices. Whether any purchases of milk will be made has not been determined, but butter and cheese, will be distributed.

The long-range aspects of the program and its bearing on supplying an outlet for farm surpluses will be handled by Bean.

Repeal Hope Unlocks Flood Of Rum-Conviction Appeals

(Associated Press.)

Convicted prohibition law violators are piling up the docket of the United States Supreme Court with appeals, hoping repeal passes before that tribunal disposes of their cases.

Meanwhile, Justice Department officials are considering adoption of a policy of lenity, if repeal is voted.

During the recess of the court 425 petitions for review were filed, of which more than 300 are liquor cases. The court will meet October 2. Court attaches believe most of the appeals will be dismissed.

Another question which Justice Department officials must settle soon is whether, in view of official forecasts of repeal by early December, cases now pending in the court are to be prosecuted.

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 22 (AP). Gabriel Turbay took office today as premier of Colombia, the youngest man ever to hold that office. He is 32.

Observers considered his appointment as an indication of his cooperation with the presidential candidacy of Alfonso Lopez, Turbay being first lieutenant for Lopez.

High Finance!

Postmasters Paying $1 for $1.60 to Be Curbed.

Postmaster General Farley yesterday ordered legislation to be prepared to "ameliorate" the practice of some fourth-class postmasters increasing their compensations by personally swelling the mail.

Under the law commissions allowed postmasters in this class for the first $75 worth of stamps canceled by their offices amounts to 160 per cent, or $1.60 on each dollar's worth of stamps sold.

An investigation, Farley said, disclosed some of these men had been sending heavy packages through the mail—in some instances butter, eggs and cream. West of the Mississippi foodstuffs had been sent to New York by parcel post, he asserted.

Eastman Sees Merit in Plan For Rail Union

(Associated Press.)

Consolidation of all railroads into a small group of great trade channels is being studied by Joseph B. Eastman, coordinator of transportation, in an effort to achieve operating economies.

Eastman has selected the Prince plan, presented to President Roosevelt last winter as a typical one to study.

This plan would combine the Nation's railroads into seven or eight systems formed around the New York Central and the Pennsylvania Railroad in the East, the Southern Railway and the Atlantic Coast Line-Louisville & Nashville system in the South and others in the West.

The carriers in each of the three regions, said Eastman yesterday, have created organizations to study possible economies in operation through joint use of facilities.

Through this investigation the coordinatof expects to secure information on what can be done without further consolidation.

"Various ambitious schemes have been suggested, however," added Eastman, "for concentration of the railroads.

"Very large economies are claimed for these plans. For example, it has been claimed by the proponents of the 'Prince plan' that it would save something like $740,000,000 in operating expenses, or about 30 per cent of the total operating expense.

"The coordinator believes he should check the possibility of very large economies said to inhere in such consolidation.

"It should not be understood that the coordinator is committed either for or against the 'Prince plan' or any similar plan. His present thought is merely that the claimed economies of such schemes are so great that they ought not to be disregarded, but merit careful analysis."

U. S. Plans to Free Cash in Shut Banks

ance of the banking community to administration pleas for ever easier loans, and, incidentally, the Federal Advisory Council's warning that bankers are not to blame for hesitancy in the absence of any known administration monetary policy, have combined to push the administration toward another and more definite step at this time.

On top of this, there has been considerable concern over the impending bank guarantee law, since its strict application would leave out in the cold many nonmember institutions.

On the other hand, a lax interpretation of the law would make the Government liable for large sums. In this dilemma, some of the administration's monetary advisers have been importuning the President the last week to set up a broad plan of redeeming bank deposits.

Plan Liberal Policy.

That a liberal policy would be pursued was officially stated at the White House yesterday. It was said that, with reference to the bank guarantee law, many banks were solvent but not liquid, and that the R. F. C., by purchase of preferred stock, was prepared to give these institutions more capital, preferably in conjunction with the raising of local capital, to make them eligible for guarantee.

Some of the President's advisers would not only flush buying power, by relief to previous victims of closed banks, but they would arrange far in advance to pay off depositors in such banks as are considered ineligible for guarantee when the law takes effect on January 1.

Estimates vary on amounts lost to depositors since the depression began. The National Depositors Committee estimated $5,000,000,000 was in banks closed between the end of 1929 and the banking holiday of last March 6.

Reserve Figures Given.

Federal Reserve figures are that from the end of 1929 until March 6, 5,488 banks having deposits of $3,480,000,000 were closed, of which 754 with deposits of $525,000,000 later reopened.

At the end of June, Reserve system figures indicated, about $2,500,000,000 additional was tied up in banks unable to open after the holiday. The committee for the Nation estimates that, all told, $7,500,000,000 of deposits had been lost to depositors since the depression began.

Johnson Ready To End Strife Among Aids

Harmony or Resignation to Be Demanded by NRA Chief.

(Associated Press.)

Creation of regional agencies to mediate strikes was announced by the National Labor Board as Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, considered demanding either an end of controversial statements or designations from prominent members of his advisory boards.

Johnson was described by high officials as disturbed by the barrage of statements being flung back and forth by spokesmen for capital and labor within the NRA.

Johnson Ill in Home.

For the second day he was ill at his home, but it was said when he returns he will demand more harmony or an exit from the organization by those carrying on public disputes.

Plans for the regional labor boards were announced jointly by Johnson and Senator Wagner, of New York, chairman of the National Labor Board.

Rumor of Conflict Denied.

At the same time they denied there had been a conflict of authority between the administrative side of the NRA and its labor board.

In approving wage agreements for the bituminous coal fields, President Roosevelt moved to clarify the recovery act's collective bargaining provisions. He inserted a paragraph extending the wage and hour agreement to nonunion as well as union workers, providing against a closed shop to unorganized miners.

$13,352,350 Freed For Public Works

(Associated Press.)

The Public Works Administration yesterday assigned $13,352,350 of its $3,300,000,000 fund to a series of Federal and non-Federal projects throughout the country, including allotment for investigation and development of plans for the huge Bonneville Dam on the Columbia River in Oregon.

Returning from a 6,000-mile airplane tour of field agencies of the Public Works Administration, H. M. Waite, deputy administrator, said there were sufficient worthy projects in course of preparation to exhaust the entire $3,300,000,000 by January 1.

He reported to Secretary Ickes, administrator, that in some cities he had found "serious situation because they had reached the limit of bonded indebtedness."

In most instances, he told Ickes, the political subdivisions were "conscientiously attempting to get their finances in condition" where they could apply for public works funds.

U. S. to Probe Belgian Action In Lindy Case

Cables Consul in Antwerp to Report on Arrest of 3 Suspects.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department yesterday sent a rush cable to Marion Letcher, American Consul General at Antwerp, Belgium, to investigate arrest of three men reported taken in custody there for investigation in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

It was understood here the Department of Justice, on the basis of press reports of the arrests, had asked the State Department to work through diplomatic channels to determine all the facts.

The men have been detained by Antwerp authorities. They were reported to have exchanged a sum of American mony for $1,000 at a foreign money exchange.

Paris Kidnap Clew Fails.

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP).—Paris police picked up today what they thought was a clew to the Lindbergh kidnaping, but abandoned it.

First they announced they had the name of a man who had a £1,000-pound note identified by the Bank of England as part of the ransom money extorted from Col. Lindbergh. Later they said they were mistaken and no search for the Lindbergh kidnapers was being made.

Arrest of three men in Antwerp after trying to cash the British note was reported. One of the men later revealed the note was inclosed in an envelope addressed to a Belgian judge, who thought it a joke and tossed the envelope to a clerk, who threw it in a waste-basket.

Reveal Note Was Stolen.

Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 22 (AP).—Investigation by Belgian authorities revealed today that a £1,000 note, allegedly representing part of the ransom money in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, was stolen from a consignment of money en route from Monaco to Paris. The appeals court today confirmed sentences passed upon three men yesterday for receiving the stolen note.

Counsel for the defendants asserted the note was part of the ransom, but the court doubted the statement and the further investigation was launched.

Soviet Officials Hail Lindbergh

Air Transportation Over North Atlantic Near, Flier Predicts.

Leningrad, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—A northern air route over the Atlantic, linking America and Europe, will be in operation on a commercial basis within a few years, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh predicted here today.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here today from Helsingfors, Finland. They brought their seaplane down at the Leningrad Airport to the welcoming cheers of Soviet aviation officials, representatives of the Moscow foreign office and scientists.

Lindbergh made his prediction of regular transatlantic air services over the northern Atlantic route he has just surveyed, during an interview at his hotel here.

10,000 Police Seek Outlaws

U. S. Secret Service Heads Midwest Dragnet for 6 in Mail Holdup.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—United States Secret Service officers tonight directed 10,000 police in a sweeping search of the Midwest for six bandits who stole two mail sacks in a daring holdup and killed a policeman in escaping.

Officers believe the gang leaders were three of the most notorious outlaws in the country—George (Machine Gun) Kelly, Verne Miller and Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd.

The hunt was directed by Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan, of the Federal Secret Service, assisted by Chief of Detectives William Shoemaker, of Chicago, and dozens of police chiefs.

The gang killed Policeman Miles Cunningham and terrorized two score of citizens as the trio escaped through a smoke screen their car threw off.

Kelly was known to have been in Chicago recently. Threatening letters marked with his fingerprints were received in Oklahoma, where his pal, Harvey Bailey, is on trial charged with kidnaping. Miller and Floyd also have been known to be in this vicinity.

Funds Waiting, Mayors Wired By Roosevelt

President Says U. S. Will Speed Public Works Fund Donations.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—Mayors of American cities were invited by President Roosevelt today to send in requests for shares in the $3,300,000,000 Federal Public Works fund, and were promised prompt action.

His message was read to 80 municipal executives attending the United States Conference of Mayors, just as they finished listening to charges that procrastination in distributing the Public Works fund put national recovery in the doldrums.

"We are at the point now where the States and municipalities interested in public works projects should come forward quickly with proposals which will give immediate work to their unemployed," the President's message said.

Offers to Match Speed.

"We want to cooperate to the fullest possible extent and I assure you that after your projects have been passed upon by the State advisory boards they will be acted upon in Washington with a minimum of delay.

"We will match speed with you. The money is available, and we want to put men to work."

President Roosevelt said that of the $3,300,000,000 fund, about $1,600,000,000 has been allocated.

The President's message was a direct reply to objections many mayors had brought to the conference against delays in distributing funds.

Can't Get Help, He Says.

"The reason is that we can't get help from the public works fund. I don't believe the President knows it, but the NRA so far as the Pacific Northwest is concerned has ended."

Mayor Curley, president of the conference, said provision placed in the public works bill to safeguard against possible fraud or suspicion of scandal—not lack of Government cooperation—was responsible for delay.

The conference empowered its resolutions committee to draft recommendations to the President as to what might be done to speed the program. Curley said he had spoken to President Roosevelt earlier in the week and the latter was anxious to have recommendations made.

Luer Defense Shifts Blame

Norvel Asserts O'Malley "Forced" Him Into Kidnaping.

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 22 (AP).—Efforts of defendants to throw blame for the kidnaping of August Luer, Alton, Ill., banker, on each other, began here today with testimony by Randol Norvell, one of the defendants, that he was "forced" to participate in the abduction.

Norvell, a professional bondsman, testified he was "forced" into the kidnap plot by "Irish" O'Malley, now a fugitive sought for the actual seizure of Luer, and by Mrs. Lillian Chessen.

In telling of the abduction, he pictured himself as hounded by O'Malley and Mrs. Chessen and frequently made to do what he did at the point of a pistol.

But he arranged for the hideout to which Luer was taken, drove the kidnapers' car and was frequently at the farm of Mike Musiala, another defendant, where Luer was held captive.

Cold Turkey!

New Plan Makes Frozen Birds Seem Fresh.

The Thanksgiving turkey may not set the family purse back so much this year.

Announcement of a new freezing process by which poultry may be kept perfectly in cold storage as long as seven months was made yesterday by Department of Agriculture experts. The frozen birds are said to be indistinguishable from fresh fowl.

In the new process, the bird is frozen in brine mist, four degrees below zero. It then is dipped in water, which freezes into a protective film of ice. Then it is placed in cold storage.

The new system is said to be quicker, better, cheaper. Prices on poultry may drop as a result.

13th Murder Laid to Slayer

O'Connell Kidnap Suspect Charged With Burying Man Alive.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—A thirteenth slaying was attributed by police today to Leonard Scarnici, one of seven persons arrested Wednesday in raids in connection with the O'Connell kidnaping case.

Capt. Richard Oliver, in charge of New York detectives, who aided in the O'Connell kidnap search, announced today that Mrs. Margaret Wilson, mother of the slain man, told him today that Scarnici had admitted the Massachusetts killing, stating he was hired to do it.

The confession, Capt. Oliver said Mrs. Wilson told him, was made when Scarnici was under arrest on another charge.

Among the slayings police sought to connect him with were: The machine-gunning of Vincent Coll, Bronx desperado; the ride killings of Marcel Poffo, Max Parken, Anthony Russo, and Joseph Caliegro, whose bodies were found near Harrison, N. Y.; the killing of Joe Ruggiero, the "sack murders" of William Price and Edward Flanagan in Brooklyn, and the "sack murder" of David Reiner, who had been arrested with Scarnici for a robbery of the postoffice at Salisbury, Conn.

U. S. Will Rid Beer Industry Of Gang Taint

Suspected Breweries Get Summons to Prove Right to Permit.

The Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, it was disclosed last night, is entering the final stage of a campaign to rid the beer trade of its last gangster taint.

Already certain prominent Eastern breweries have been asked to show cause why their permits to manufacture 3.2 per cent beer should not be revoked, it was learned at the bureau. Certain others are scheduled to receive the bad news soon.

The action is taken under that clause of the 3.2 law authorizing withholding of permits from breweries which formerly were in the bootleg trade.

Beer Racketeers Slain.

Information throwing suspicion on the breweries reached bureau investigators following the killing in April of Max Hassel and Joseph Greenberg, notorious New Jersey and Pennsylvania beer racketeers.

When they were found slain in Elizabeth City hotel rooms paid for by Waxey Gordon, a New Yorker, the permit for the Harrison Beverage Co., of Harrison, N. J., was in the hands of one of the dead men.

It was one of the permits which brought pressure on Attorney General Cummings for removal of Maj. A. V. Dalrymple as head of the Prohibition Bureau when it was merged with the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation.

Reason for Cleanup.

The cleanup of the breweries, it was learned, is being carried forward because Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol James M. Doran expects future demands of drinkers to make beer manufacturing a bigger business than it was in some of the preprohibition years, and he wants it to be above suspicion.

The fact that certain breweries must prove their right to exist does not mean the Doran forces have been lax, it was pointed out. Dr. Doran, it was said, has been busy trying to eliminate racketeer breweries since he took charge in 1927, his success showing in reduction of breweries between that year and the 3.2 era.

H. C. Curtice, head of the A. C. Spark Plug Co., said tonight all employes were at work there, although strikers claimed 80 per cent of the die and pattern makers had quit.

Smith claimed the companies, all units of General Motors Corporation, were disregarding the NRA code. This, too, was denied by company officials.

Kick From Pet Horse Is Fatal To Dr. Iden, 89

Manassas Doctor Dies When His Hip Is Fractured.

The flying hoofs of his 20-year-old pet horse, which he had raised from a colt, yesterday caused the death of Dr. Benjamin Franklin Iden, 89, prominent Manassas physician. Dr. Iden, who practiced medicine in Manassas more than 60 years, was kicked by the horse Wednesday. The blow fractured his hip.

Until his accident, Dr. Iden attended to the practice he had built up through generations. He first went to Manassas after his graduation from the old Washington Medical School in 1872. In 1874 he was married to Miss Virginia John Hooe, who survives him.

Dr. Iden, a member of the Baptist Church and the Masons, was typical of the traditional country physician. He was noted for his interest in his patients, often driving miles through all sorts of weather to see them. Often he refused pay from the poor.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed yesterday.

Besides his wife, Dr. Iden leaves two sons, Drs. John Hooe Iden and Benjamin Franklin Iden, jr., of Washington, and three daughters, Mrs. G. I. Ballard and Mrs. Mason Benoist, both of Washington, and Mrs. Joseph Bennett, of Fairfax.

Reporters Ask More Benefits In Press Code

Attack "Unfairness" and Urge Protection for All Staffmen.

(Associated Press.)

A code for the daily newspapers was explained yesterday to the NRA by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, and immediately statements were made that it counternanced child labor and was unfair to the reporters and editorial employes who supply the news.

The A. N. P. A., through Elisha Hanson, general counsel, and a number of officials, contended that the Constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press gives newspapers the right to stay outside the recovery program if they so choose.

The publishers said, too, that a shorter work week than the 40 hours they proposed would hasten the failure of many newspaper establishments on the verge of bankruptcy.

A claim for shorter hours for newspapermen was presented by the guild of New York newspapermen and women.

Alexander Lindey, a spokesmen, speaking also for editorial organizations in Newark, Boston and Buffalo, asked a 40-hour five-day week for editorial workers exempted from the minimums established by the A. N. P. A. code.

Heywood Broun Speaks.

"We make the newspapers; the publishers just get them out.

"I was delighted to hear that every circulation manager is the friend and protector of the newsboy, but I would like to see the same kindly attitude extended by the publishers to writing newspaper men and women."

Others Discuss Staff View.

Doris Fleeson, a Washington reporter for the New York Daily News, testified that a "40-hour week is a successful and accomplished fact" on her newspaper.

Joseph Lilly, a New York World-Telegram staff writer and another Guild witness, said the Guild wanted to prevent the arbitrary dismissal of newspapermen who have worked years for their papers.

James Kiernan, of the New York Times, argued for an employe representative on the board administering the code, and Morris Watson, of the New York staff of the Associated Press, said, "Press associations should be brought in under this code." Both Kiernan and Watson are Guild members.

Child Workers Protested.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, of the National Child Labor committee, assailed provisions of the code that permit the employment of children to deliver newspapers.

After the newspapermen had presented their case, Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, spoke in their behalf.

"Those engaged in the gathering, writing or editing of newspapers," Morrison said, "on the average receive salaries far below the wages of the mechanical workers of the same publications."

Hanson declared the board of directors of the American Newspaper Publishers Association had authorized him to say that if the reporters would organize the publishers would be glad to deal with them.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

IT was "Bon voyage!" with a continental flourish at the Norfolk & Washington steamship docks last night as Miss Janet Stevens, 917 Eleventh street northeast, and William E. Mitchell, 3519 New Hampshire avenue, second place winners in The Post's Federal Diary popularity contest, set sail for Virginia Beach. Their prize is the trip, with a week-end at the leading hotel in the seaside resort.

Miss Stevens, who works in the Public Roads Division of the Department of Agriculture, and Mitchell, who is employed in the Veterans' Administration, were to have gone last week, but lower Chesapeake Bay was a churning mass of whitecaps in the wake of the coastal tornado.

Miss Stevens had as her companion Mrs. Guy M. Carlon, 4812 Western avenue, who works with her. Mitchell took his father, F. Edward Mitchell, special assistant to the Attorney General.

"ONE salary check in a home is better than none," declares Monroe W. T. Brown, Agriculture, in supporting the Economy Act Marriage clause on dismissal of wives when husbands also are employed by the Government.

BAKER.

"May the work progress. If ever a movement was on foot that will rehabilitate our homes and employ the unemployed, that one will," he continued. "However, the drawback to date has been that few in the upper salary brackets have 'felt the ax,' the 'head-hunter' should start with the wives of men who earn $6,000 a year and upward. The next slash should hit wives whose spouses have $5,000 per annum to support them; and so on down the line. The reverse procedure seems to have been the rule to date.

"The National Women's party resents the implication that wives shall not be employed. Is it not better that some wives who have plenty to live on stay at home, and men of families be not furloughed 11 days a month? Little children are being undernourished, poorly clad and utter discouragement stalks through many homes.

"This city is filled with couples whose incomes total more than $5,000 a year, and who have no dependents. The Nation's stability is vastly more important than the question of the right of a married woman to work. Let her confine her activities to her home, for homemaking is a grand industry and a noble art. May the 'head-hunter' pay more attention to the $5,000 a year and upward employes!"

Union Rejects U. S. Building Job Arbitration

Striking Carpenters Bar Work Resumption in Inclosure Dispute.

Attempts to solve the labor dispute, which held up work on the Interstate Commerce Commission-Labor Department Buildings all week, suffered a fresh setback yesterday when a proposal to arbitrate was rejected.

William L. Hutcheson, general president of the carpenters' union, refused to order his men back to work unless they were permitted immediately to install radiator inclosures in the connected buildings. He was reached by telephone in Lakeland, Fla.

James Stewart & Co., contractors, offered to place both iron workers, who have done the work so far, and carpenters on the inclosure job, permitting the latter to draw pay while sitting by while the other craftsmen do the installation. This plan was refused by Hutcheson.

Shutdown of operations a week ago yesterday threw 1,000 men out of work indefinitely and stopped an $8,000 daily pay roll. Edward A. Burnap, superintendent, said activities can not be resumed until the strikers return.

Officials expressed the belief yesterday that arrival of presidents of the conflicting unions in Washington next week to attend meetings preliminary to the A. F. of L. convention will hasten settlement of all three labor wars.

Peril!

Fishing Party Near Death in Crippled Cruiser.

Caught in a heavy sea, lashed by high wind, a 65-foot cruiser yacht tossed helplessly; its drive shaft snapped. Those aboard hoisted distress signals, but for eight hours vessels passed without paying any attention.

Such was the experience of Frank P. Avalear, 3110 Hawthorne street northwest, and members of his fishing party, in Chesapeake Bay near Annapolis, Md., Thursday.

Their signal was finally seen by a Norwegian steamer which radioed Baltimore. They were rescued by the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co.

Entz Obtains Court Hearing

School Heads Must Tell Oct. 9 Why They Bar His Children.

An order directing school officials to appear in court October 9 and disclose their reason for refusing admission of his children at the Gage School was obtained in District Supreme Court yesterday by H. H. Entz, father of two children who have been barred from the school because they have not been properly vaccinated.

In a suit filed by Attorneys Daniel Ring, James Crouch and Walter Bastian, Entz claimed his children were entitled to admission to the school because he was a Government employe. He declared further that the law regarding compulsory vaccination had been complied with. He said Dr. Andrew Browne Evans had vaccinated the children and signed a paper to that effect.

Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools; Selden M. Ely, supervising principal, and M. R. Lyddane, principal of the Gage School, were named defendants.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 22 (AP).—Senator Harry F. Byrd today accepted the chairmanship of a Virginia committee to seek from the Federal Government a loan for a scenic highway from the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia to the Smoky Mountain National Park in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Newspaperman's Killer Insane, Court Decides

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (AP).—Edwin Davis, 59, a janitor charged with the murder of E. Gail Patterson, newspaper business manager and former Minneapolis advertising executive, was adjudged insane by a Superior Court jury today.

Davis ran amuck in a newspaper office in which he once was employed, killing Patterson and wounding another man.

U.S.-Soviet Credit Pact Thought Near

Morgenthau and Russian Representative in Series of Meetings.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—Direct Government credits on Soviet purchases loomed tonight with the disclosure that Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration, and Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, have held several conversations recently.

Their meetings—in which the field of trade and credit has been explored—were regarded as the most important development in Soviet-American relations, inasmuch as Morgenthau, a trusted aide of the President, was designated to direct Russian trade negotiations.

The naming of Morgenthau, was interpreted here to mean the President is giving close consideration to the Soviet situation.

The Morgenthau-Bogdanov discussions have contemplated immediate purchases of cotton, live stock and heavy industrial equipment.

Dairy cattle and cotton are needed in the Soviet States. Negotiations have been under way for several weeks for the purchase of $20,000,000 in rolling mill equipment for a sheet steel plant to turn out automotive bodies.

Belief that recognition matters also have entered into their meetings was given credence by the information that Boris Svirsky, the Soviet representative in Washington, participated.

Liner Virginia Safe After 120-Mile Hurricane.

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Sept. 22 (AP).—The Panama Pacific liner Virginia came in today after passing through a hurricane in which three passengers and more than 100 members of the crew were injured.

Wednesday night, a day out of Havana, the vessel met heavy seas and a 120-mile wind. Capt. J. V. Richardson hove to and prevented structural damage.

Matt Saxby, gymnasium instructor of the vessel, fell over a rail and down three decks through a shaft. He landed on his head but was not hurt.

Blowing Cold and Then Hot.

It is one of the logical anomalies of bidding that a player is frequently justified in making a strength-showing response after once having declared to his partner that he had shown all the values he held on his original bid. This unusual situation might be tersely described as "blowing cold and then blowing hot."

Mr. George H. Van Buren, of Ferndale, Mich., sent me the hand below with the comment that it is a fine example of good use of the Forcing Takeout and the Four-Five Notrump Convention. By the use of these bids, and through first denying that the hand contained additional value and then finding another strength-showing bid, a Grand Slam was reached and made, doubled and redoubled, when vulnerable. No wonder Mr. Van Buren likes the bids—and, incidentally, his own bidding and that of his partner was very fine.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♡(1)	Pass
3NT(2)	Pass	4♠(3)	Pass
4NT(4)	Pass	5NT(5)	Pass
6♠	Pass	7♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(6)	Pass	Pass
Redbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A very fine forcing takeout, based as it is on 3½ honor-tricks and a perfect fit with partner's bid suit.

2—Although South's hand is more than a minimum, he cannot make any other response than notrump at this point, as he does not know of his partner's splendid spade support and as he lacks support for North's suit.

3—An indirect Slam try. North does not give South a chance to show a preference between spades and hearts.

4—South rightly reads North's bid. It must be based on strong spades in view of the fact that he declined to permit a choice between spades and hearts at the game level. Hence the four-notrump bid is now fully justified.

5—The conventional response.

6—An incomprehensible Double. What West expected to use for tricks is a mystery.

Of course, the play is simplicity itself. The heart suit breaks 3-3 and thus provides a place to discard the losing clubs in the Declarer's hand.

Reichstag Fire Suspect Bars U. S. Attorney

Leipzig, Germany, Sept 22 (AP). The suggestion that Arthur Garfield Hays, an American attorney, assist in the defense of one of the accused was politely rejected today by the defendant himself in the second day of the trial of the five men charged with firing the Reichstag building last winter.

Alfons Sack, counsel for Ernest Torgler, former Communist floor leader in the Reichstag, had demanded ejection of newspaper men he said who had reported the trial unfairly.

Sack was asked during an intermission why, if the trial was fair, he did not collaborate with Hays and let the American lawyer see Torgler. Sack replied that if Torgler wanted another attorney, he would gladly step aside.

At that point Torgler interrupted with: "I am satisfied I am adequately represented."

Mr. Hays came here from London, where he attended the hearings of an unofficial international legal commission which investigated the fire.

Berlin, Sept. 22 (AP).—Stung by boycott measures advocated in foreign lands, the German government will put into effect tomorrow a law permitting drastic restrictions on imports from those countries "subjecting German wares to import restrictions."

Boycott is not mentioned in the law, but it is viewed as a possible retaliation measure.

London Disguises Fast Police Cars

Police Hunt Auto Bandits in Ramshackle Vans.

London, Sept. 22 (AP).—Masquerading as ramshackle tradesmen's vans, the new speedy "Q" cars symbolize the latest means used by Lord Trenchard, head of the Metropolitan Police, to combat motor car bandits.

Austria-Berlin Peace Rumors Cheer Vienna

Chancellor to Talk Direct With Reich Members at Geneva Parley.

Vienna, Sept. 22 (AP).—Rumors of peace negotiations between Austria and Germany increased tonight on the eve of the departure of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss for Geneva, to attend the world disarmament conference.

The fact that the Chancellor will soon be where he can talk with Reich representatives added fuel to the favorable conjecture here.

In this connection the Freie Presse cited new skepticism concerning the pro-Fascist Heimwehr by the recent utterances of Prince Starhemberg, the organization's leader.

The prince issued a statement which partly clarified the relations between his followers and the chancellor following an order yesterday that Heimwehr members should not wear the emblem of the Dollfuss patriotic front. The ban remained, however, despite his statement.

The prince said the chancellor has made "a great stride forward," and "we pledge him our united support if he continues in the future also to advance toward the same goal."

Japan Assailed In Soviet Note

Russia Insists on Full Rights in Railway Management.

Moscow, Sept. 22 (AP).—Soviet Russia today lodged a sharp protest with Japan, charging that Japan, through Manchukuo, intended to disregard Russia's rights in the conduct of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Declaring "Manchukuo is powerless and incapable of being responsible for events in Manchuria," the Russian note charged the two countries "intend rudely to violate the rights of the Soviet manager of the railway, making him dependent on a Manchurian assistant."

"At the same time," the protest continued, "Manchurian authorities, under the direction of Japanese agents, are planning a series of police measures against Soviet employes of the railway.

"The Soviet government accordingly warns that a realization of such measures will be regarded as a violation of treaty obligations and as an inadmissible attempt to seize the railway."

Executive Group Seeks Help for War Mothers

Indianapolis, Sept. 22 (AP).—Asserting no mother who gave a son to war service should ever be dependent on public charity, the national executive committee of the American War Mothers went into session here today to develop a plan for an endowment fund to meet such situations.

A way is sought to raise sufficient money to endow two homes they already own, one in Washington, D. C., and the other in Denver, Colo., to care for dependent war mothers.

Controlled Inflation.

Two of the strongest anti-inflationist statements that have been issued during the present week have come from Senator Lewis of Illinois and Secretary Wallace. The former told a group of newspapermen that "puffing the dollar" on the theory that it would mean an advance in the price of cotton or oil would lead to another demand for inflation in other markets, and the result would be to destroy "all the fine work that has been done under the NRA."

On the previous day Secretary Wallace, speaking to members of the Grain Dealers Association in Chicago, asked his audience to remember that inflation is "not a cure-all and that when it stops, as sooner or later it must, we will again discover that our problem is one of achieving balance."

When Senator Lewis and Secretary Wallace assert that the price-raising program of the administration—both in the industrial and in the agricultural field—is jeopardized by inflation, the public is justified in feeling somewhat bewildered. What is the difference, it will be asked, between the controlled inflation which Secretary Wallace champions so energetically and the kind of inflation against which he periodically issues warnings?

Most of the confusion is due to a failure to define the word "inflation"; but it seems evident from the context that the inflation which the senator from Illinois and the Secretary of Agriculture fear is the kind which leads to progressive depreciation of the currency with accompanying indiscriminate increases in the nominal prices of goods and services. Inflation of this sort undoubtedly would deal a fatal blow to plans for readjusting the prices of specific commodities or classes of commodities to bring about that "better balance," which is the theme of Secretary Wallace's addresses and the goal of his ambitions.

Efforts to increase the price of cotton, for example, by reducing acreage or to advance quotations for coal and oil by limiting output can not be carried out effectively if a threat of uncontrolled inflation hangs over the country. Furthermore, the purpose of such planning would be nullified by a violent advance of all prices. For example, twenty-cent cotton or even dollar cotton would bring no benefits to the farmer if he had to pay several hundred dollars for a suit of clothes and proportionately more for other necessities. Similarly, the industries that are organizing to restrict output to amounts that can be sold at a fair profit will not be helped by rising prices that entail correspondingly heavy increases in outlays for wages, raw materials, &c.

If the cost computations upon which plans for adjusting supply to demand are based have to be revised constantly to allow for rapid changes in the purchasing power of the dollar, the mechanism of a program of controlled inflation would be thrown hopelessly out of gear. The mere expectation of monetary inflation tends to make men unwilling to cooperate in long-time plans for raising prices by restricting production.

If there is a prospect that the Government will print enough paper money to advance prices to the level desired, why make the sacrifices and go to the trouble of trying to increase prices by producing and selling less? Secretary Wallace no doubt would reply that a price advance obtained by the paper money route does not remove surplus commodities from the market, nor does it improve the economic status of the seller, who has to pay more for everything that he buys.

Monetary inflation may for a time blind people to the necessity of making the fundamental adjustments of supply to demand, which alone can assure profitable sales. Unless they wake speedily from their delusion, however, complete loss of confidence and the business paralysis which Senator Lewis fears will be the ultimate outcome.

The Pennant Winners.

For the third time the Nationals have won the league pennant under the generalship of youthful managers—twice under Bucky Harris and now under Joe Cronin. Instead of having been handicapped by managerial duties, Cronin played better than ever, and at the same time developed a conquering spirit in his team.

The players face the world contest with enthusiasm based upon knowledge of what they have done and what they can do. They outrank the Giants in batting and fielding, and are undaunted by the formidable array of Giant pitching talent.

The slump of the Yankees is one of the notable features of the season. Washington wins the pennant easily with eight games to the good. At the beginning of the season it was hardly hoped that the Nationals would gain more than second place, with the Yankees at the top. But youth has beaten age in both playing and generalship. In the remaining league games Manager Cronin may be expected to conserve the resources of his star players, now that wins or losses are comparatively unimportant.

The first world series game will be played in New York on October 3. When the contestants meet in Washington a great outpouring of the Nationals' admirers is expected. On the basis of actual points, the local fans have good reason to expect their idols to capture the championship of the world.

The Retail Code.

When it is considered that there are more than 1,500,000 retail stores varying greatly in size and in the conditions under which they do business, it is not surprising that difficulty is encountered in reaching an agreement on a code of fair practice. In view of conflicting opinions the codes drafted for the general retail trade and for drug stores were made public when they were presented to the NRA Administrator, to afford opportunity for registering approval and arguments for revision.

The response from both sides has been prompt and emphatic. The provisions which form the storm center are the disputed principles of price-control and price-fixing. The price-control, or loss limitation provision, declares that no retailer shall sell any merchandise below a minimum price, which shall be the wholesale delivered price with the addition of a charge of 10 per cent. This is called "control," because wholesale prices vary. With regard to drugs the code rules that no standard trade-marked products shall be sold at a discount of more than 21 per cent below the maker's price on the package. This is known as price-fixing, because the manufacturer's price is defined.

Opposition to these provisions from the Mail Order Association of America, various large department stores and retail merchants, and the Consumers' Advisory Board are being voiced in energetic manner. It is contended that retail prices would be based on the wholesale price paid by the smallest store for minimum purchases, and would result in such advances that buying would be restricted. Support for the retail code as drawn comes from the six New York City Retail Dry Goods Associations, the Better Business Bureau and numerous small merchants who believe the regulations will benefit them.

Officials of the NRA who have been instrumental in formulating the code hold that it will tend to lower average retail prices and will check price cutting and alleged abuses arising from the sale of bargain leaders at less than cost.

District Court Building.

In view of the difficulty encountered in efforts to expedite the expenditure of public works funds to relieve unemployment, it may be that the Public Works Administrator will consider favorably the urgent recommendation of District of Columbia authorities for immediate construction of a building to house the District municipal and police courts, Police Department, and other services. Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the District committee of the House, has added her appeal to that of the District Commissioners. In a letter to Secretary Ickes Mrs. Norton characterizes the present building as "a disgrace to our Government."

The conditions surrounding the local administration of justice are utterly unsatisfactory. The court building is overcrowded, insanitary, and unsuitable. A new building is badly needed.

The new structure is planned as a part of the Municipal Center. The designs are advanced to the point where construction could begin without long delay. Since the cost of maintenance of this building would be cared for in the annual budget of the District, it meets all requirements of the Public Works Administration on that score. The other requirements, relating to social usefulness or necessity, engineering feasibility, and legal eligibility, are all met in this case.

The Public Works Administration could devote a reasonable sum to this project with every assurance that the purpose of the law would be promoted.

Costly Pork.

Some interesting facts are brought to light in a statement by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as to its hog slaughtering campaign. The Government has purchased approximately 3,575,000 swine from which have been cured about 51,000,000 pounds of meat. The average is a little better than 14 pounds of meat per pig.

To get a clear picture of what the A. A. A. has accomplished it is necessary to break up these figures. Only a small portion of the total number of pigs slaughtered is being converted into food. About 36,000,000 pounds of meat have been obtained from 600,000 pigs weighing from 80 to 100 pounds each, and 75,000 sows have yielded 15,000,000 pounds of meat. This leaves 3,500,000 smaller pigs with a total weight of about 159,000,000 pounds from which no edible substances appear to have been saved.

If the average yield of meat per pig is no higher in the future than it has been thus far, there is some doubt as to whether the A. A. A. will be able to supply the Federal Emergency Relief Administration with 100,000,000 pounds of cured pork. Director Hopkins has announced the allotment of that amount of pork to the various States. But at present only 51,000,000 pounds of meat are available.

Nearly 60 per cent of the pigs called for in the Government's program have been slaughtered. The deficiency might be made up by larger purchases of heavier swine, but farmers are extremely reluctant to part with their sows. Only 7.5 per cent of the number sought by A. A. A. agents have been purchased thus far.

In spite of this probable shortage, thousands of tons of pork are going to waste. From the statement of A. A. A. authorities it appears that nothing has been salvaged from the slaughter of 2,900,000 pigs weighing less than 80 pounds, except 13,000,000 pounds of inedible grease and 13,000,000 pounds of fertilizer. The Government has spent $13,000,000 for pigs of this type, or 50 cents per pound for grease and fertilizer. In some cases the undried tankage has been turned over to farmers on request. In other cases it has been destroyed for lack of tankage facilities.

The effect of this venture on pork prices remains to be seen. Officials expect the influence of the Government's purchases to be felt in the hog market of 1934. But the refusal of most farmers to part with their sows suggests that the pork supply next year may yet be abundant; in that case the results of the experiment might be disappointing. At present the outstanding feature of the plan is the meager result obtained from the outlay of a large sum of money.

Stock Exchange Taxes.

Passage by the New York City municipal assembly of local emergency levies imposing a 4-cent per share tax on transfers of stock and a 5 per cent tax on the gross income of all persons engaged in the business of buying and selling securities has so aroused members of the New York Stock Exchange that they have decided to open an exchange in another State. A dozen important Wall Street firms holding 50 memberships in the Stock Exchange have organized the New Jersey Stock Exchange, and announce that more than 1,100 members of the New York institution, or partners in exchange firms, have accepted invitations to join.

It is contended that in addition to existing taxes the projected local levies would make it impossible for many brokerage houses to operate in New York. The location of the new exchange has not been decided upon definitely. Both Newark and Jersey City are being considered, with the latter city more generally favored, apparently, due to its accessibility to New York. The possibility of this abandonment of the metropolitan location seems to be having an effect upon the price of exchange seats. The last sale was made at $150,000, a decline of $50,000 from the previous transfer.

At a meeting of the governing committee of the Stock Exchange, President Whitney and other officials, including the governing body, agreed to assume similar positions with the New Jersey exchange and to direct its affairs. Present plans call for the opening of the new exchange in a limited way on October 2. The New York Curb also has made tentative plans to follow the Big Board to New Jersey. If the more important markets move across the river dealers in unlisted securities and houses with no exchange affiliations also may be transferred. It is understood that New York offices will not be abandoned, but the gross profits tax will be avoided by retaining present Manhattan headquarters as branch establishments, with main offices legally maintained in New Jersey.

While Stock Exchange members are displaying active interest in the New Jersey project, efforts also are being made to avert the necessity of the change. The assembly enactments have not yet been signed by Mayor O'Brien, and petitions signed by more than 50,000 employes of security houses have petitioned the mayor to veto the measure. They also are addressing Gov. Lehman, urging that a special session of the Legislature be called to prevent enforcement of the taxes.

International comity demands that very little be said about the latest Cuban disorders having started in the town of Moron.

European Liquor Rules.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

Citizens whose business it is to replace the temporary licensing regulations with permanent laws should see to it that the present advantage is not lost—should see that beer, likewise the other drinks that follow repeal, are kept in the open.

Driving them behind closed doors and shrouded windows will bring back the old saloon. Saying, "This is evil; we can not prevent it, but we can hide it where the young can not see it," was the worst error of preprohibition days. A more sensible point of view would be, "If this be evil, at least we shall keep it public that no one may do it unseen." That way it will not be evil; at least not very evil. This is not merely opinion; it is fact, fact that can be verified in 20 European countries. Keep it public. Few men will make sodden souses of themselves in plain view of the passing crowd.

In Europe drinking is almost all public, but even there whenever, exceptionally, the windows are curtained, as in a German weinstube or in the private back room of a French "bistro," it tends to badness. Another important law or regulation for the lawmakers to adopt is the Continental one against "pushing" consumption. It goes without saying that a French cafekeeper is very strictly forbidden to sell any liquor, beer or stronger, to a customer already showing signs of intoxication.

But the law goes much farther. Many foreigners live in France for years without learning it, but the French law flatly forbids a cafekeeper or waiter on pain of canceling the establishment's license to urge or even to suggest that the customer take another drink. A customer can take a table and buy a drink the moment a place opens in the morning—a drink of mineral water if he likes—and, though he sits there until midnight, no one can hint to him that he should take another.

This is occasionally a source of annoyance to foreigners in France. Some of them like to be "looked after"—to have a little more service. It is, however, largely responsible for the fact that alcohol is so small a problem.

Make the new dispensaries, whatever they are called, wide open to public view and forbid the pushing of sales.

Blocking Recovery.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

ELMER TWITCHELL ON BARGAIN SALES.

Dear Gen. Johnson: I see by the papers that one of the objectives of the big NRA drive is to get women to cut out bargain sales so that the plan to help merchants get more money for their goods may succeed against chiselers. Well, I hope you succeed, but you have your work cut out for you.

* * * *

Making a steel baron jump through a paper hoop, getting a Pittsburgh coal operator to stand on his head, and prevailing on Hank Ford to do a love waltz with a Blue Eagle is a pipe compared to getting a woman to pay a dollar for something she can get next door for 99 cents.

* * * *

Not that the women of America are lacking in patriotism or enthusiasm for NRA. They are behind it and they want to help it, but the call of the bargain counter is in their blood and they can't escape it. Men are weak enough, and you can't imagine David Harum paying $11 for a horse collar that he could get for $10.78, but women are spendthrifts in comparison.

* * * *

You tell the average woman where she can get a yard of cloth for 20 cents and she will crash right through the door of the store where she is looking at the same material for 22. Only the other day I saw a lady stop right in the middle of an NRA speech when she spotted a sign across the street that read, "Clearance Sale—Nothing Over 89 Cents."

* * *

The love of bargains is a national instinct. We have been developing it ever since the early settlers argued the Indians into selling Manhattan Island for the equivalent of $27, or something like that. We have become a Nation of bargain-hunters, and hell hath no fury like that of a woman who has just bought a hat for $6.50 and finds it on sale the next day at $4.95.

* * *

So, I am just telling you that the toughest part of this New Deal is to get the women of America to close their eyes to marked-down goods and buy to keep prices up. It is going to take a lot of talking, and I don't even think that will do it. How are you fixed on chloroform?

* * *

Well, anyhow, I wish you well, and I will do my part to make my own wife walk by bargain sales, although I know nothing that will slow her to a walk like a "Your Pick for 63 Cents" sign.

Yours truly,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

CAN'T EVEN IMAGINE IT.

George Dunlap, new amateur golf champion, began on a midget golf course, it is revealed. Perhaps his success is due to the fact even today nobody has ever told him about those big open spaces called "rough."

The slogan of labor seems to be, "Strike while the NRA is hot!"

AND ON HER DAY OFF, TOO.

Possibly Jean Harlow wed a cameraman because it is such a relief to have somebody with whom to talk about pictures when she gets home from work.

Inflationist: A man who doesn't care what becomes of the dollar he hasn't got.

If Havana expects to compete with the other resorts this winter she had better localize the revolution in front of Sloppy Joe's and sell seats to the tourists.

We know a man who shaved off his whiskers, threw away his dark glasses, went out into the sunshine and kept opening a suitcase and filling it with clothing. Asked what he was doing, he replied, "I'm practicing repeal."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter.

By Robert Quillen.

MY DEAR LOUISE: Circumstances and I together have done you a great wrong.

You are young enough to right matters, however, if you have the will to do it, and this is a belated effort to help you develop the will.

The wrong done to you consisted in making your life too soft and easy.

It is usual to regard that as a favor instead of a wrong, and so it seems at the time. But later, when you begin to get the effect you realize how harmful and unfair it was. It is much like keeping a boy's hands soft and tender as training for a job of wood chopping.

I wouldn't have you return to more primitive days when girls got up long before daylight to help with the milking, thaw a frozen pump, bend over a wash tub until noon and finish the day at some light task like hoeing the garden. Many girls do these things yet, but such drastic schooling isn't necessary.

The building of character sounds like a dull business and probably won't appeal to you. But it really means developing will power, and anybody should be able to see the value in that.

You have heard the old saying that a one-eyed man would be king in a country of the blind.

Well, it is equally true that a man with sound arms and legs would dominate a community of helpless cripples.

Suppose two men are sitting on a porch when a child in the yard is attacked by a dog. One man can not run to her assistance because he has no legs and the other can not because he has no will power. Are they not equally helpless?

Those without will power are crippled no less than those who have physical handicaps.

If an individual can not quit smoking, can not say "no" to an insistent salesman, and can not force himself to do a disagreeable duty, is he not a helpless cripple? He is in a sorry plight if he can't control himself. He has hit bottom.

Will power, which is the frame work of character, is learned by doing disagreeable things—by forcing yourself to get up when you much prefer to lie between warm blankets.

It is easier to learn in childhood, and youngsters who live hard absorb it unconsciously as they steel themselves to do the job required of them.

You missed that training, but you can make up for it if you will. All you need do is practice the art of forcing yourself ahead whenever you feel inclined to hang back.

You must learn it, my dear, for will is the greater part of character and without it you will be a cripple at the mercy of those who are sound. Love,

DAD.

Comment of the Press

Redistricting Army Forces.

Houston Post.

It is to be assumed that in evolving his plan for abandoning 50 Army camps and spending $50,000,000 in improving others, President Roosevelt sees a way to achieve permanent economy. Very likely he has found that within a short time far more than the $50,000,000 he proposes to spend on improvements will be saved through the concentration of troops in fewer camps.

Many of the Army camps still being maintained were established in the days when settlers needed military protection from Indians. Their excuse for existence passed with the passing of the Indian menace. Politics long restrained the Federal Government from taking cognizance of the fact that the Indian wars were over, and the old Indian outposts were maintained as Army camps. Their chief function was to supply an economic asset to the neighboring civilian community.

The rearrangement of Army camps as proposed by President Roosevelt should have been consummated a long time ago. President Hoover started out to do something along that line, but was deterred by the flood of protests. It is to be hoped that President Roosevelt, having set his hand to the plow, will not turn back. Our national defense is in need of being strengthened. Redistribution of the troops will be a step in that direction.

Germany's Experience.

Boston Transcript.

When the Reich inaugurated its experiment in currency inflation, it had no idea that the program would be carried to disastrous lengths. The very arguments for "doing something" that are now being heard in certain sections of this country were put forth by the amateur economists of Germany. It was said then, even as it is said here now, that the brakes could be applied at any moment. What actually happened is written large in every textbook of modern history.

Grants to the States.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The lavish grants of funds to the States by the Federal Government and its competition with private commercial enterprise began long before the depression cast its shadow. These policies did not cause the depression, but they weakened the line of defense and thereby put a still heavier burden upon the central Government, one from which it is a question whether it will ever be wholly freed.

No Rest for the Boss.

Richmond Register.

There is no restriction in any of the codes on how long the boss works, due doubtless to the fact that it is realized he will need the time to raise the pay roll.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

How to Be a Success.

Sometimes success so little takes
I wonder that we fail.
The cup of broth a woman makes
For one whose cheeks are pale
May be the deed, if but we knew,
That no one else would think to do.

'Tis not in glory or in fame
That all success is told,
However loud the world's acclaim,
How filled the purse with gold,
Who heedless passes suffering by
Fails all he gains to justify.

A cheery word, a helping hand,
A tiny spring of flowers
May longer on the record stand
Than proof of mightier powers.
Who helps another in distress
That moment comes to true success.

In countless little ways
A man may rise above the fate
Which wealth and fame delays.
Success, sometimes, so little takes
It may be broth a woman makes.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

WHEN it comes to cutting through the fog and getting right down to fact the Tammany district leaders undoubtedly take the cake. Yes, sir, there is no reason in the world to try to becloud the issue with those fellows, to seek to lose the point in frills or hide the truth in embellishment. They have a canniness, it would seem, that is unexcelled.

Bargeron.

For example, a news story dealing with their present mayoralty mess says a number of them "have come to feel" that Boss Curry made a mistake when he opposed Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago. This truth may have been hidden from them for a time, but to show you how they keep plying through until they get at things, a feeling of it has now come to them, not a certainty as yet, of course, but a "feeling" which their steady plodding for fact is sure to eventuate into conviction ere many more moons have gone by.

* * * *

I HAVE been watching the evolution of the Tammany district leaders' minds to see just how long it would take them to get on this trail. There are cynics who insisted the dumb bunnies would never get onto it. I thought otherwise, and I now find my confidence justified. No such persistent seekers after truth as the Tammany leaders could long be kept from such an obvious fact as that Boss Curry make a mistake when he opposed Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago. It was something to which their utter relentlessness sooner or later was bound to bring them.

That Boss Curry made a mistake there is not the slightest doubt. I don't know just what else he could have done, if anything, with Mr. Al Smith on his hands. I doubt that anyone in Boss Curry's shoes under the circumstances would have done any better, which is to say the boss was in a fix.

But when he did what he did, he made a mistake, there is no disputing that.

* * * *

AND what the Tammany district leaders are now coming to "feel" those of us in Washington have known for many months. That is, that it was a most costly mistake Boss Curry made.

The price he must pay is just now being definitely worked out. That Mr. Roosevelt would some time get to it there has never been any doubt. The banking crisis, the international conference, the NRA and the other things with which he has to deal have delayed him somewhat in getting around to this matter, but around to it he is coming now.

The result will be, in a few months, that Tammany likely will be no more than a local organization, if that, and probably Boss Curry will have been relegated to the limbo of things of the past.

* * * *

DEFINITE plans for dealing with him and his organization are understood not to have been determined upon. They involve, though, two alternative courses, one of running Mr. McKee of the Bronx, who had quite a popular appeal the few months he served last year, as the independent Democratic candidate for mayor against Mayor O'Brien, the Tammany nominee, and Mr. Fiorello LaGuardia, the Republican-fusion candidate—or of getting behind Mr. LaGuardia to insure his victory over O'Brien.

Either way, Tammany and Boss Curry seem bound to lose.

In the end it is more probable the administration here will decide to get behind Mr. McKee. He is the protege of Bronx Leader Flynn, who did not make the mistake of opposing Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago, who instead, gave his all to the cause.

And after all, Mr. McKee is a Democrat. For the White House to get behind a Republican might not set so well with other Democratic organizations. What kind of party business is this, they might ask.

* * * *

MR. ROOSEVELT has reason to feel most kindly toward Fiorello, though; most kindly, indeed. When Fiorello, a most capable fellow, was here in the House he voted with the Democrats nearly all the time.

Of more importance to Mr. Roosevelt, though, it was he who started the rout against the sales tax on which Mr. Jack Garner, then an aspirant for the Presidency, was riding very high. Until this came about the name of "Honest" Jack Garner, or Texas Jack, or whatever it was they called him, was going right well out in the country as a leader of commanding proportions, as one who might well sit in the White House.

When the sales tax fight which LaGuardia stirred up was over, Cyclone Jack looked like just a gentle breeze. Which, of course, didn't make Candidate Roosevelt mad.

FOOT-POWER.

"Travel afoot as much as possible," is the counsel of Mussolini. One who moves about in this democratic way is not in a mood for de luxe resorts. The pedestrian is frequently led into populous places if he walks far in any large city, says the New York Times. He is likely to find streets unknown to the automobile. Moreover, the walking habit induces promptness and patience. It can hardly be held that the suggested alternative, the motorcycle, nourishes any of these virtues, though the centaurs were the only monsters of antiquity to whom good traits were assigned. But they were noiseless.

Veterans Ask U. S. Stop Practice of Daughters of Confederacy.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 22 (AP).—The Grand Army of the Republic today condemned the practice of the Daughters of the Confederacy of presenting each year a Robert E. Lee sword to a West Point Military Academy cadet.

The Civil War veterans, as their sixty-seventh encampment ended, urged the Government to abolish the practice.

Explaining the resolution criticizing 10 per cent cuts in Civil War pensions under the national economy act, Judge James W. Willett, of Tama, Iowa, judge advocate general, said the veterans felt keenly the effect such a cut would have on widows of veterans.

The G. A. R., however, refused to join other veteran groups in fighting pension cuts and criticizing the administration in Washington.

"The G. A. R. feels the pension cuts were effected as means toward balancing the national budget, and to have joined any such organization would be construed as criticism of the administration," Willett said.

Another resolution protested sale of 50-cent coins at the World's Fair in Chicago to help defray cost of the Stone Mountain Memorial to Confederate soldiers.

District Liquor Plan Presented

Crusaders' Leader Offers Ideas to W. W. Bride.

A plan for control of hard liquor and beverages of more than 3.2 per cent in the District following repeal of the eighteenth amendment was outlined yesterday to Corporation Counsel William W. Bride by Rufus S. Lusk, vice executive commander of the Crusaders for the past two years.

Bride said he would study the Lusk plan, as well as the Wickersham report and liquor control laws already passed by other States.

The District Commissioners yesterday relieved Assistant Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West from extra duty as chairman of the "beer board," which passes on beer permits. His colleague, Walter L. Fowler, of the corporation counsel's office, was named in his stead.

Christian Science Topic Is on "Reality."

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Isaiah 65:17: "Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth, and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; but when thine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness. Take heed, therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkness." (Luke 11: 34,35).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "According to Christian Science, the only real senses of man are spiritual, emanating from divine Mind.

When Jesus declares that "the light of the body is the eye," he certainly means that light depends upon Mind, not upon the complex humors, lenses, muscles, the iris and pupil, constituting the visual organism" (pages 284 and 393).

Israel Leaders Reviewed

God Selects the Heart to Work Out His Plan and to Every One Work Is Given According to His Ability to Give Fruition to It.

(Review of Third Quarter.)

Golden Text: "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might." (Eph. 6:10.)

By Wyman Walker.

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." God has allotted to each man his portion according to that man's ability—though God is no respecter of persons, he is a respecter of hearts.

In dealing with man, God looks upon his heart according to the precept of man's willingness to do His will.

God selects that heart to do the things He would have done to carry out His plan. Then man is awarded according to his labors. "Even so faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone." (Jas. 2:17.)

In summarizing the characters we have been studying, Joshua's portion was a leader, and he was blessed in God's allowing him the privilege of allotting the inheritance given Abraham and his seed, the 12 tribes. Caleb received his portion in being obedient.

In Deborah, God shows his strength through the weaker sex in a physical sense. This study shows that strength—physical, intellectual or otherwise—without God is lost.

Through Isaiah, God shows us that while strong drink slays its thousands, the fleshly or worldly lust slays its tens of thousands. God's portion to Isaiah was His mouthpiece. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." Gideon was also a leader and a fighter, who permitted God to work through him to deliver Israel out of deterioration. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Degeneration through running after other gods and the worshiping of false gods is always a stumbling block in our path of righteousness, and will bring strife and impoverishment upon us.

The story of Ruth gives a very clear conception, in the sense of prophecy, of the past, present and future states of Israel. Hannah's faith in Jehovah to deliver her of the approach of others is only typical of Israel's condition today.

Did God answer Hannah's fervent prayer? Indeed, He did, and He will answer again when He hears Israel's cry. All the prophets tell us of Israel's blinded condition to our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. God gave Hannah a man-child—Samuel, God's blessed, prophet-priest.

In that Israel was clamoring for a king, it was through their own efforts Saul was enthroned, but reaped corruption and sin; while David, being God's anointed, was rejected even as Christ was rejected, turned to his friend, Jonathan, who typifies the Christians while Christ is rejected, thanks be to the Father that He shall reign as did Solomon: "Solomon in all his glory could not praise him as will Israel in that day."

Will that not be a great day when all sin is banished, and the hearts of men shall be pure and unadulterated and we shall "enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise." (Ps. 100:4.) "The works of His hands are verity and judgment; all His commandments are sure." (Ps. 111:7.)

It was through faith in God that these men wrought their mighty deeds and "obtained a good report." The Pauline writing to the Hebrews says, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

Faith gives us those wonderful things which are to the "heirs of salvation." It vivifies, justifies, sanctifies, pacifies, certifies, glorifies! "For the love of money is the root of all evil, which, while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

"But thou, O Man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life." (I Tim. 6:10-12a.)

"Wherefore I perceive that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion; for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?" (Eccl. 3:22.)

What's in Fashion?

Practical Gifts for the Autumn Bride Can Be Beautiful and Decorative, Too

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where utensils of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

Lucky the bride of this, or any, autumn, whose friends don't bother to surprise her but who bluntly ask, "What do you want me to give you for a wedding present?" She can then be assured of starting out with many of the practical necessities which otherwise eat such holes in a young couple's budget.

Not long ago any one with an eye for beauty might have balked now . . . not when those new copper cooking utensils shine in your eye.

Copper for Heirlooms.

They are real beauties . . . chromium lined and with decorative brass or rosewood finished handles. Some day they'll be heirlooms for her grandchildren . . . for that's the way copper wears.

China Casserole.

Another caserole is shown at A, decorative in a different way. The frame is chromium and the dish cream-colored fluted vitreous china with green or black bands.

An electric toaster is another one of those practical, good-looking cooking utensils which is always appreciated. At C we show you a new one, with added practicality.

It has its own tray which carries at one end a bread board and knife. At the other end, six glass dishes wait for marmalade, jam, relishes or sandwich fillings.

Gadgets Removable.

All the items are removable from the tray so they may be used separately when desired.

Grand for a buffet supper party, bridge party or as the piece de resistance at breakfast.

Of course, there are many other practical gifts for the bride besides those used in preparing or serving meals.

Send for Leaflet.

Another practical and beautiful gift is silver. And if you are going to be a bride or have a bride-to-be in the family, you might like to run over our leaflet, on silver, which advises just what to start with and what can be left for later purchases.

Send us the coupon below, with requested information and enclosures, and we'll mail you the leaflet.

Meals of Sea Food Become A Real Event

By Ruth Anne Davis.

From noon until four in the morning you'll always find a hearty welcome at this downtown sea grill. It doesn't matter whether you drop in for a casual luncheon, a hearty dinner, or a midnight supper, you'll meet with the same genial and cosmopolitan atmosphere.

There's something about the place that suggests the gay nineties. Perhaps it is the downstairs grill counter with its large, elaborate bar mirror. Or it might be the old-fashioned columned fireplace upstairs. Or the stuffed pheasants over the doorway.

The grill is making a specialty this month of oyster dinners. First there's an oyster cocktail, followed by clam chowder or crab gumbo. Then a heaping plate of fried oysters with French fried potatoes and a salad. In the line of beverages, you have your choice of coffee, tea, milk, or beer. You will have trouble finding a more deliciously prepared and well arranged dinner anywhere for 90 cents.

Another tempter on the menu are the crawfish, sometimes known as southern lobsters. These are served hot, in butter, with sufficient garnishing to make one order a meal in itself.

It doesn't matter how many cakes come and go, or how delicious chocolates and angel foods are, or caramels, or fruit cakes, or any of the others, the lemon layer cake always will have a backing. A Fourteenth street bakery offers a special today. Try one and if you aren't a sponsor for this kind forever after there must be a four-star reason why.

Even to look at the four-layer, golden batter beauty is enough to make your mouth water. And to taste it—words, words, where are you?

P. S. The price of one, a large one, is 60 cents.

A steak dinner, not just a steak, for 65 cents! To begin with there's a cocktail or soup. And then a salad. And then, a steak; not a mere steak, a choice tenderloin, with French fried potatoes and two vegetables. For dessert, you have a choice of pie, cake, sherbert or ice cream.

This dinner is one of many offered you at a downtown food shop, centrally located in the shopping district. You can have a half fried spring chicken with all the above mentioned accountrements for 55 cents. Or even a seafood platter. And there are several other suggestions on the menu.

Women who work all day and return home in the evening tired but obliged to fix dinner for an equally tired husband often run into domestic difficulties.

The hour or longer it takes to prepare the meal sometimes is electrified with sharp words. And by time dinner is served neither can enjoy it.

It's a dilemma, but like any others should be taken by the horns. One way of doing so is to shorten the length of time it takes to cook the repast. You say, "Oh, sure, we could do this, but a poor dinner it would be."

Not necessarily. This one, for instance: American chop suey, buttered egg noodles, tomato and watercress salad, quick biscuits, mixed fruit cup, date cookies, coffee.

Order from the market a small bunch of celery, a 2-ounce can of mushrooms, 1 pound tomatoes, 1 bunch watercress, buffet can of pears, 1 orange, 1 grapefruit, small bottle of maraschino cherries, ½ dozen date cookies.

Prepare in this order: Put water on to boil, preheat oven for 15 minutes. Prepare ingredients for chop suey, and place on to cook. Prepare salads, prepare fruit cup. Put biscuits in oven. Put noodles on to cook. Set table. Put coffee in pot or percolator ready for hot water. There you are. Now all you have to do is serve dinner.

Here's the American chop suey recipe:

1 tablespoon butter or substitute; 1 onion, cut in shreds; ½ cup shredded celery; 2-3 cup sliced mushrooms; 1 tablespoon flour; 2-3 cup milk; salt, pepper, ½ teaspoon soy sauce.

Place onion and celery in saucepan with just enough water to cover. Cook until tender. Add butter and mushrooms and cook for three minutes, stirring constantly. Add flour and when well mixed stir in the milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Season with salt, pepper and soy sauce and serve with buttered egg noodles. Shrimp, tuna fish or chicken may be used in place of mushrooms. Soy sauce may be increased or omitted if desired.

Buttered Egg Noodles.

Cook one-half eight-ounce package egg noodles in briskly boiling salted water nine minutes. Drain. Season with salt, pepper, butter and a few drops of meat seasoning.

Tomato and Watercress Salad.

Cut one tomato in thin slices. Place on salad plates and add a few sprigs of watercress to each salad. Add salt, pepper and French dressing to taste.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

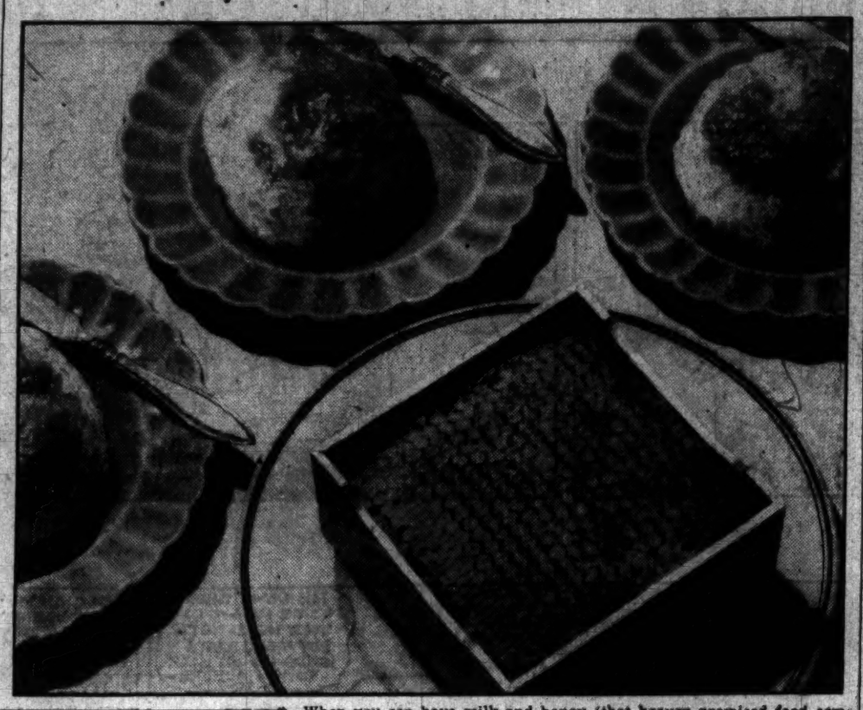
Honey and Hot Biscuits—What a Dessert!



When you can have milk and honey (that heaven-promised food combination) right here and now—in such delicious form as hot biscuits with fresh-from-the-comb honey—why look further for a good dessert?

Marie Dressler (her biscuits are famous) wouldn't. Neither would a lot of other folks. And when honey-in-the-comb is no longer available, they'll have this favorite dessert just the same—using strained honey, to be had in glass jars, all year 'round.

For dessert biscuits to be enjoyed this way, most people like to use plenty of shortening, so as to have them extra rich and tender. Like this: Mix 2 cups sifted flour with 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon sugar. Then lightly mix in (I use fingers for this) ½ cup shortening. Add just enough milk to hold mixture together (about ¾ cup), roll or pat it out about ½ inch thick, shape with a cutter, and bake on a greased tin at 450 F. (Makes 12 large biscuits).

Honey-Nut Cookies.

Strained honey is delicious in cakes and cookies, too—not only because it gives them such good flavor, but because it helps them to keep better, too. Here's a way to prove it—in honey-nut refrigerator cookies.

First mix ½ cup strained honey with ½ cup sugar. Then cream this mixture into ½ cup creamed butter. Add 1 whole egg and beat smooth. Next, combine 2½ cups sifted pastry flour with 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda, ¼ teaspoon salt. Add this to first mixture, with ¾ cup finely chopped pecans. Shape this mixture into a long, thin loaf, wrap in waxed paper and chill in refrigerator overnight. Then cut into thin slices, and bake at 375 degrees F. about 15 minutes.

Honey Fruit Salad Dressing.

Another way to hit the spot with honey is to wrap it up in the following de luxe cooked salad dressing and serve it over any combination of fruits you like.

First slowly heat ¾ cup strained honey in top of double boiler. Then (with a fork) beat up 2 whole eggs slightly (or 4 egg yolks). Beat the honey into these, and return to double boiler. Cook gently like a custard (stirring constantly till mixture coats a spoon). Let cool, add ½ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. When ready to serve, whip 1 cup sweet (or slightly sour) cream and fold it into honey mixture.

More good ways to use strained honey: Sweeten your grapefruit or your fruit-juice drinks with it—for the fine contrast in sweet and sour flavors that epicures prize. Use it over ice cream (with chopped nuts). And enjoy it on waffles, as a change from syrup.

Send for Mushroom Recipes.

Another favorite food that will be coming into market more plentifully from now on is mushrooms. Grapes Used In Prize Recipe For Conserve

Mrs. Arthur Sinclair Wins $5 With Unusual Suggestion; Fruit Plentiful.

With harvest time comes the grape season and the vineyards of nearby Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and Delaware are replete with their fruit. The far-seeing housewife gets out her preserving kettles and prepares for a store of jams and jellies, made from the succulent grape, which will add zest to many a meal during the fall and winter.

From Mrs. Arthur Sinclair, of Alcova Heights, Arlington Station, Va., comes an unusual recipe for "grape conserve." It happily combines grapes anr nuts, and even oranges, in the needed ingredients for the completed article.

Mrs. Sinclair wins the $5 prize this week for her recipe, and it is hoped that many women readers of the Washington Post will test it out:

Grape Conserve.

5 lbs. Concord grapes
1 lb. raisins
3 lbs. sugar
2 oranges (shredded).
1 cup walnut meats.

Remove the fruit from stems, weigh, wash and pulp. Cook pulp and skins separately, adding only enough water to skins to prevent burning. Remove seeds from pulp. Combine all ingredients, except sugar and nuts. Bring to the boiling point and cook ten minutes. Then add the sugar and cook twenty minutes longer, stirring often. Add nuts, cook a few minutes longer, pour into sterilized jars and seal with paraffin.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If September 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 to 8:40 a. m., from 11 to 11:30 a. m. and from 3:40 to 4:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 to 3 p. m., from 5 to 5:40 p. m. and from 7 to 7:50 p. m.

You may find yourself on this date forced to act quickly and without being in possession of all the facts pertaining to the matter at hand; make your decision fearlessly and do not let yourself get rattled. Although the ultimate results of your action will not be definitely known for some time, you will find immediate evidences that will serve to guide you. Criticism of your family to others will bring trouble.

The child born on this September 23 will, in all probability, not get along well with those of its own sex, regardless of their age. The success or failure of this little one at school will be determined largely on its attitude toward its teachers. The teacher who can gain the respect and admiration of this little one will succeed in inspiring it to do its best work. Inclined to be temperamental.

If September 23 is the date of your birth, your outstanding characteristic is an absolute fair-mindedness which is beyond question. Never do you give a decision on anything without first having carefully weighed both sides of the question. You should succeed in any line of work which would enable you to bring about justice and fair play. In the courtroom as judge or lawyer, as an arbiter, you will give all parties an even break and keep everybody happy. You are an intelligent person, an avid reader and a constant student of human nature.

Born on September 23, you will always derive a great deal of joy from your work. You will as a rule put your very best into your work, with no thought for material gain; things will come your way in abundance, a goodly supply of all that is good. You will never give up your ideals for more than likely you will come early in life to feel that perfection can be attained in a large measure if constantly and spiritually strived for. You are a deeply religious person, and unlike most people you are able to find all about you evidences of the presence of a Supreme Being. The only time you will ever be in danger of losing your head will be in the matter of affairs of the heart. Here you are inclined to be impetuous and unreasoning, and unless you "put on the brakes" you may find yourself plunged into the divorce courts.

The Family Marketer

Mushrooms Are Here and High Priced, but They'll Be Cheaper.

Whether it's the mushroom tradition, the fact that for many years they have been highly regarded as an expensive luxury, or whether it's the meek-looking little mushrooms themselves that promote their popularity is a matter we won't bother about. Why should we? They're here, high right now, 50 cents a pound, but on the way to being cheaper.

Sometimes they're in season, but the season isn't kind to them. This time, however, conditions are entirely favorable—moisture and shifting spells of warmth and coolness. According to the dealers, they're shooting out of the ground in promiscuous fashion, along the sides of the road, in back yards and even on the golf courses.

California Oranges Up.

California oranges have advanced 75 cents on the box. In retail stores you can buy them all the way from 25 cents to 75 cents a dozen: When you're choosing oranges, or grapefruit, keep in mind that despite their exterior appearances, the best way to judge them is by their weight. The heavier one are those with the juice.

In a few weeks the standard Florida orange crop will appear and the Californian's will be up against stiff competition.

Endive, selling for 15 cents a pound, looks decidedly tempting. While it's here in such first-rate condition, why not add it to your menu? Try scalding it and serving it chilled with salt and vinegar. This takes the place of a salad with an extra large dinner.

Fall is the season for Brussels sprouts, broccoli, cauliflower and beets.

Sprouts Always Interesting.

The sprouts always are an interesting looking item on any plate. In cooking them remember to time them well, for overcooking makes them bitter. They should be served with plenty of salt and butter to be enjoyed to best advantage. Those from New York State have in most cases left the market, but they're here in great profusion from California, selling from 30 to 35 cents a quart.

Beets can be used in several interesting ways. They're always good boiled and served either with pepper and vinegar, or butter and salt. Those left over, if kept on ice are ideal the next day for a luncheon salad along with the remains of your beans, peas, asparagus and cold meat.

Pickles Brighten Winter Meals And Now's the Time to Can 'Em

At this pickle-making time of the year it is well to remember, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, that if pickles are not exactly real food, they go far toward making real food more interesting.

During the winter months, if foods and food ideas run short in variety, pickles will help considerably by giving a different tang to the same old bill of fare. So make your pickles while you may of peaches, pears, watermelon rind, green tomatoes, cucumbers and onions. And this is how!

The easiest to make are fruit pickles, such as whole pickled peaches, crabapples, or pears, cooked in a spicy, sweet-sour sirup.

Then there are quick-process pickles made from vegetables salted down overnight and combined with spices and vinegar the next day without cooking. Next are the brined pickles, also called fermented pickles, because they go through a curing process lasting from two weeks to two months—dill pickles and sour cucumber pickles, for example. Sweet pickles, mustard pickles and other mixtures are often made from the vegetables cured in brine.

Watermelon Pickle.

4 pounds watermelon rind
Limewater made with 2 quarts cold water and 10 grams, or 2 tablespoons, lime
2 quarts vinegar
1 pint water
4½ pounds granulated sugar
2 tablespoons whole allspice
2 tablespoons whole cloves
10 2-inch pieces stick cinnamon

Select rind from a firm, not overripe melon, and before weighing trim off the green skin and pink flesh. Cut in inch cubes and soak for 2½ hours in the limewater. Drain, cover with fresh water and cook for 1½ hours, or until tender, and add more water as it boils off. Let stand overnight in this same water and next morning drain. Bring to the boiling point the vinegar, 1 pint of water, the sugar and the spices tied loosely in cheesecloth. Add the drained watermelon and boil gently for 2 hours, or until the sirup is fairly thick. Remove the spice bag, pack the watermelon pickle in sterilized glass jars, seal airtight, and store in a cool place.

Cucumber, Onion Rings.

1 peck small cucumbers
2 quarts small white onions
1 cup salt
Vinegar
1 cup mustard seed
2 tablespoons celery seed
2 tablespoons peppercorns

Slice the cucumbers and onions about ¼ inch thick, pack in a crock in layers with the salt sprinkled between, and let stand overnight. In the morning drain in a cheesecloth bag, and press out all the juice possible. Taste before adding the vinegar and if too salty rinse in cold water. Measure the onions and cucumbers, take half as much vinegar, heat to the boiling point, add the spices and pour over the vegetables. Pack at once in sterilized glass jars, seal and store in a cool place.

Dilled Green Tomatoes.

40 to 50 green tomatoes
2 ounces mixed pickle spices
Fresh or dried dill
1 pint vinegar
1 pound salt
4 tablespoons sugar
2 gallons water

Use fresh-picked green tomatoes of uniform size and free from blemish. Wash them well and drain. Into a five-gallon crock place a layer of dill and spice. Fill the jar with the tomatoes to within 4 or 5 inches of the top. Mix the vinegar, salt, sugar and water, and pour over the tomatoes. Place a layer of dill over the top. Cover with a heavy plate and weight it down to hold the tomatoes under the brine. Use only enough brine barely to cover, for as the liquid is drawn from the tomatoes the jar may overflow. Each day remove the scum that forms over the top and keep the pickles at even room temperature, about 70 degrees or as warm as 86 degrees F., if possible. In about two weeks the pickles are ready to use—crisp, well flavored with dill, and clear throughout with no white spots when cut.

For storage, pack the cured pickels in sterilized quart glass jars and add ½ cup of vinegar to each. Fill up the jars with the pickle brine, but first strain it, bring it to the boil, and cool. Seal the jars airtight and store in a cool, dry place.

Chili Sauce.

5 quarts skinned, chopped ripe tomatoes
2 cups chopped sweet red pepper
2 cups chopped green pepper
1½ cups chopped onions
3 tablespoons salt
1 cup sugar
3 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

Combine the chopped vegetables, salt and sugar and simmer until the mixture begins to thicken. Then add the vinegar and spices and cook the mixture down until it becomes a thick sauce. Pour into hot sterilized bottles, use new cork stoppers, and dip the bottle tops into sealing wax or melted paraffin. Store in a dark cool place. This recipe yields about 3 quarts of sauce.

Orchid Proves Temperamental Bane of Florist

Refuses to Be Conducted Into Bloom-Flowers as It Chooses.

The exquisite beauty of the orchid, aristocrat of flowers, is supplemented by a temperamental botanical stubborness which is the marvel and despair of florists.

The exotic plant refuses to be personally conducted into bloom, and different crops present themselves at different times of the year, always suited to their own inclination rather than the florist's.

Before an orchid actually blooms, seven years at least have been spent in strengthening the plant to support the flower. In some cases, 10 to 12 years are necessary. The baby orchid, propagated with so much difficulty, is placed in an incubator at an even temperature and fed exactly as a tiny baby would be. It must have its allotted amount of vitamin D through sunshine, and, finally, when strong enough, is transplanted into sand, where it eventually takes root.

Inexpensive in September.

The Fabia orchid, a rich, strong purple flower with a delicate spicy scent, makes its bow, as a rule, in September. For this reason, one can usually command the finest type of orchid blooms at the year's bottom price during the weeks of September and early October.

If one cannot afford orchids as a table decoration or for personal adornment at any other time, the first smart dinner of the early fall is an ideal time to this seasonal idiosyncrasy of the haughty flower.

Fresh flowers are worn with every type of costume, and in Paris this season one sees dainty wreaths of jasmine and gardenias worn in the hair for evening. This is particularly attractive on dark women, who brush their hair smartly back from their temples and wear the wreath like a tiara.

Wear Them Face Up.

Orchids should always be worn with their faces up; never turned down, as you lose both the beauty and the scent of the flower.

This year it is smart to wear flowers either at the waist or directly in the center of the bosom. Bosoms are in fashion, and with a slight suggestion of hips and nipping in the waist, give an amusing change to the silhouette.

Orchids are worn for street wear and for all smart occasions—luncheon, bridge, formal and informal dinners, theatre. Of course, for all formal occasions orchids naturally head the list, as they are in truth the royal family of the world of flowers.

For weddings, white orchids and lilies are always chosen by discriminating brides; lately, white orchids also are used as a table decoration for the bride's breakfast, or supper.

You will find that the finest linens, silver, china and glass require a distinguished floral decoration, and orchids, without question, meet this requirement, and are dignified and beautiful enough to complete a faultless table ensemble.

Walt Mason, Himself

Just Wait 1,000 Years.

The laws which govern this our land seem often fierce and vain, and here and there the rebels stand, protesting might and main. They urge defiance of the courts, they say the law's a sin; and then the cops, those dead-game sports, come up and run them in. I have contempt for sundry laws, but nothing do I say; with silencers upon my jaws, I go my tranquil way. I know some laws are vastly wrong, incompetent and weak, and ever as I trot along I hear the rebels shriek. They talk of violence and bombs, and raise a frightful din; and at the end a copper comes and promptly runs them in. Some time the laws will be correct, without a glaring flaw; then the millenium, I expect, will close upon us draw. It takes about 1,000 years a decent law to frame, and all a nation's wisest seers must mingle in the game. It's changed, amended here and there, by jurists passed upon, and when at last it's counted fair, a thousand years have gone. The statute book it now adorns, a fair and just decree, but it has hurt a million corns ere 'twas from errors free. It does no good to voice our hate and call the law a foe; the wisest plan is just to wait a thousand years or so.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—The family man hereabouts faces a dilemma—one he rarely solves until he's achieved one of those ten-to-four jobs, of which there is not an oversupply.

Naturally, he'd like to live near his work—and that means Manhattan. Naturally, too, he'd like his children to have some sort of acquaintance with grass and trees and sunshine—and that leaves Manhattan out.

One chap I know dwells within the skyscrapers' shadows, which is convenient for him but a constant source of annoyance to his wife, who has ideas as to how children should be brought up.

What a Job!

Last April the two began looking for an apartment or a house nearer the open spaces. They spent three Sundays in Westchester towns, four in Connecticut, six on Long Island and six or seven in New Jersey—without finding anything that fitted pocketbook and convenience.

Their lease expires October 1—worn out by the house-hunting summer, they're going to renew it.

This, of course, is an exceptional case—usually a family like this ends up in some suburb, the husband rising at 6 o'clock in the morning in order to get to his office on time, and spending half of his days on trains, buses, ferries, taxicabs, trolley cars and subways.

Incidentally, New York is probably the only city in the country that draws daily workers from four States. They are New York (half a dozen counties), New Jersey (almost every section), Connecticut (along the shore) and Pennsylvania (Philadelphia contributes a handful of bankers).

Manhattan Bits.

As one who once considered that he was quite a city fellow when living in a hamlet of 25,000 population, I am quite amazed to learn that many people attend a Broadway movie house every day.

A Ninth avenue fruit vendor displays this sign: "Good Oranges—More Jiouse." It's your guess whether that last word has one syllable or two.

Hughie Clark is the one plump fellow I know who can shave without taking off his collar or tie.

Manhattan Island's greatest width is 16 miles.

What becomes of sidewalk shoe shine boys in winter? . . . Another sign that the geese are flying south is that the Erie Canal barges are coming in to tie up until spring . . . When Zimbalist arrived in Nicaragua for his concert, his old friend, President Sacasa, arose at dawn to welcome him.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

A Treatment for Bell's Paralysis.

Bell's paralysis is a disorder characterized by paralysis of one side of the face. It is not serious in the sense that it threatens life or is the forerunner of any disease which may do that. In so far as the face is concerned the effects it causes are those of hemiplegia or apoplexy. The most alarming feature about Bell's paralysis is this resemblance to apoplexy, a disease with which it is not in any way related.

However, aside from any danger to life the person who has Bell's palsy is unhappy because of the change in his expression and his loss of muscle control of the eye and mouth. To have an eyelid droop somewhat and at the same time to be unable to close the aperture completely, to have the eyeball turn in a peculiar and unusual way, the corner of the mouth droop or pull up at the corner, to have no ability to close the lips or to use them properly in speech, to have one side of the face flat and expressionless—such symptoms are a source of considerable discomfort and embarrassment.

Bell's paralysis is due to a neuritis of the great bundle of nerves which supply the muscles of one side of the face. This nerve, known as one of the cranials, comes away from the base of the brain and passes through a long, narrow, bony canal to emerge on the side of the head near the ear and then to break up into branches which run to the several groups of muscles distributed from the forehead above to the chin below.

Dr. B. R. Tucker, recognizing that the undue effect of this form of neuritis is due to pressure, treats the disease by a novel method. He puts an old-fashioned fly blister on the skin behind the ear. He leaves it there long enough to raise a blister. When he began his method he poulticed the affected side of the face, reapplying the poultice often enough to keep it warm. This he kept up for two or three days. At the present time, instead of using the poultice, he uses an infra red lamp, or, failing that, an ordinary incandescent lamp—using it frequently and freely enough to keep the skin of the affected side of the face warm and red for two days. The object is to lessen the swelling of the nerve and to relieve pressure on it while it is in the bony canal.

Wool Goods Very Active During Week

New York, Sept. 22.—Wool goods markets were very active this past week, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Clothing manufacturers, firm in the belief that current values will be maintained and spurred on by talk of inflation, entered the wool fabrics market during the week and placed orders for substantial quantities of goods.

As mills for the most part are not ready as yet to show spring lines or to name prices for the next season, the orders were more or less options, prices to be determined later and styles to be selected when mills have completed their lines.

"Men's wear mills are estimated to have booked orders running into thousands of pieces," says the Exchange Service, "and a number of mills have withdrawn from the market. Smaller mills began to share in the increased business this past week and in many instances booked enough orders to warrant full time operation until the end of the year.

Cloakings and dress goods continue to move in heavy volume. Jobbers are clearing stocks rapidly and mills have no spot goods to offer. Garment manufacturers are busy on fall coats and suits and a number have sold their production for several weeks ahead. Wool dresses are selling actively at retail.

Retail clothing sales were not as heavy last week as they were the week before, owing chiefly to rainy weather and resistance to higher prices. Retailers, however, report that resistance is breaking down and that sales at the week-end began to turn upward."

Bonds Recover As Rails Turn To High Levels

Rising Trend Attributed to Inflation Cooling; Sales, $14,062,000.

New York, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Led by the recently depressed secondary rails, bonds rallied substantially today, and recoveries of 1 to 5 or more points were scattered throughout the list.

The turn-about, after six sessions of declining prices, was generally attributed to improved sentiment based on the apparent cooling of the inflationary fever.

The trading volume dwindled, however, on the rally, sales totaling only $14,062,000, par value, against $16,687,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced four-tenths of a point.

Rail Buying Impressive.

Buying of the rails was rather impressive in the face of estimates that freight car loadings were showing a more than seasonal decrease.

Among the more active gainers in the carrier section were some liens of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Wabash.

It was noticeable that some of the prime investment bonds in the transportation division were up 1 to around 2 points.

Other Leaders Advance.

The better utilities and industrials included loans of American Telephone, American Metals, Armour & Co., Consolidated Gas, Goodrich, Goodyear, International Telephone, Kansas Gas, Postal Telegraph and Vanadium. Among the losers of a point or more were bonds of American Smelting, Childs Co., Colorado Industrial and Paramount Publix.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Those of Dutch East Indies, Japan, Argentina, Norway and Switzerland gained 1 to 2 or more, but issues of France, Poland, Denmark and Germany were rather heavy.

United States Government securities, for the most part, were firm.

Stocks Resume Climb As Rally Halts Break

Sagging in Early Trading Is Blocked by Firming Issues and Market Closes 1.7 Points Up; Sales Total 3,315,260 Shares.

New York, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Stocks turned about today and closed with a rally that partly regained Thursday's sharp losses. Prices sagged through part of the morning when weakened margin accounts were being lightened and other remnants of yesterday's break disposed of. Offerings were relatively moderate, however, and the list entered a period of quiet trading and narrow fluctuations, followed by a late upturn which brought general gains of fractions to 2 points and several of larger proportions.

In general, shares that had had the sharpest shakeouts came back most aggressively, as, for example, the metals and alcohols.

Firmness in the utility section was noticeable all day. Rails, though hardly buoyant, participated in the recovery, while industrials profited by relaxation of selling pressure. The U. S. Steels, American Can, Sears Roebuck, Case, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, North American, American Telephone, International Telephone, New York Central, Illinois Central, Union Pacific, Dome, McIntyre and Texas Corporation picked up a point or two.

Homestake soared 16 to a new high, but reduced its gain. U. S. Smelting gained 5 net and National Distillers 4. Corn Products, which decided to pay a 1 per cent common stock dividend in addition to the usual quarterly disbursement of 75 cents in cash, advanced 3, and Cerro de Pasco did as well.

Seaboard Oil was boosted nearly 5 as the market learned of a new gas well completed by the company. Sales totaled 3,315,260 shares, somewhat under yesterday.

Washington advices pictured the administration as studying ways and means of controlling exchange fluctuations so as to effect a stable dollar. Some bankers pointed out that currency management offered numerous perplexities; meanwhile, news of the consideration being given the stability question was well received dan dgyrations in exchange rates flattened out.

Consumer buying, says Dun & Bradstreet, continues on a sizeable scale. Current gains for retail trade "appear to be well spread in all directions, although department store sales gradually are attaining the advantage in the upward movement."

Loans to Brokers Decline $65,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended September 20 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board yesterday as $825,000,000, representing a decrease of $65,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

The loans for the week ended September 21, 1932, were $408,000,000.

The detailed distribution of the loans over the three weeks dealt with in the board's report was:

Trade Trends.

Fuel oil—It is reported that some first-hand interests in domestic heating oils are advising their dealers to accept no more business at current prices. In some trade quarters this development is regarded as forecasting another advance in the price structure.

Steel—Upward revisions in prices of steel products, predicted recently in connection with NRA developments, became an actuality yesterday with an announcement by the Inland Steel Co. of advances of $3 a ton in steel bars and $2 a ton in plates and shapes.

Cotton—Yarn buyers in leading markets have taken a position on the sidelines pending a more stabilized market for raw cotton. Yarn prices have not been greatly affected by recent erratic fluctuations in cotton, but consumers appear in no hurry to place orders at the current asking quotations.

Corn products—Eleven refiners of products of corn report a total grind in August of 6,000,000 bushels, a gain of more than 16 per cent over the same month last year, according to the corn industries research foundation.

Fine chemicals—In sympathy with an upward tendency in a number of items, leading producers of sodium benzate and benzoic acid have announced an advance of 5 cents a pound in both articles.

Effort Made to Induce More Steel Rail Buying

New York, Sept. 22.—Railroad managements are being canvassed by R. V. Fletcher, counsel to the Association of Railway Executives, according to the Associated Press, on the possibility of their buying more rails if the price is reduced, it was learned today. Fletcher is acting at the suggestion of Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of railroads.

Railroad men understand large credits for financing purchases of rail and other equipment would be available from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The present rail price is $40 a ton, representing a reduction of $3 from the quotation of several months ago, but orders still lag and some railroad executives have said that a further cut should be made.

Cotton Jumps $1.50 Per Bale On Buying Rush

December Sells at 9.85 as General Market Rises 15 to 22 Points.

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—The severe declines of the past two days were followed by rallies of approximately $1.50 a bale in cotton today. The buying was attributed to a strengthened technical position and reports of an improved trade demand. December contracts sold up to 9.96, or 31 points net higher, but there was increased hedging as well as realizing during the last half hour and the advance was not fully maintained.

December closed at 9.85, with the general market closing steady at net gains of 15 to 22 points.

Initial advances of 19 to 26 points in response to steadier Liverpool cables evidently brought in considerable trade and commission house buying as well as covering.

Foreign Houses Buy.

Houses with foreign connections were among the buyers, while there was active covering, but the demand was supplied by hedging or further scattering liquidation, and after showing net gains of some 25 to 30 points, prices sagged off in sympathy with the easier ruling of the grain market.

Offerings were absorbed on reactions of some 15 to 20 points by a continuation of the trade demand, which was accompanied by reports of price fixing for both domestic and foreign account, and the market stiffened up again in the later trading on renewed covering. At the best, prices showed net advances of 27 to 32 points, with the close showing reactions of 8 to 12 points under realizing by early buyers and Southern selling.

Exports today, 36,629 bales, making 1,081,340 bales so far this season. Port receipts, 105,971 bales. United States port stocks, 3,123,771 bales.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil today was easy early under liquidation promoted by the early weakness of grain, but rallied on increased covering and new outside buying, with the firmness in cotton and the late rally in grain and better stock market.

Final prices were 8 points net lower to 2 net higher. Sales were 50 contracts. Bleachable spot closed 4.60; September, 4.60; December, 4.88; January, 4.95; March, 5.12.

Railways Expect To Overcome Lull

New York, Sept. 22 (AP).—The present lull in business was to have been expected after the summer boom, H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, said today, and in his opinion "conditions should improve from now on."

The St. Paul, Scandrett reported, just about covered its fixed charges in August. The road, he added, would join a movement to buy rails and supplies "but we don't absolutely need more materials at present."

Russia Asks More Wheat Exportation

London, Sept. 22 (AP).—Russia stood pat today on her demand that she be allowed to export about twice as much wheat as has been allotted to her under the international wheat agreement, and a meeting between the representatives of the Soviet government and of the "Big Four" exporting nations broke up without getting anywhere.

The original figure set for Russia was 44,000,000 bushels. The Russian delegate, having made known his claims, departed before the conclusion of the meeting, leaving the others to decide what they were going to do about it.

Other nations participating were the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia. After the meeting it was said in an authoritative quarter that the Russian stand presented the hardest nut the conferees have yet had to crack.

Representatives of the exporting nations expect to meet again next week to see if they can get any further with the problem. Meanwhile some of them may consult their governments for guidance.

Germans Urged to Buy Freely As Aid in Circulating Money

Berlin, Sept. 22 (AP).—An appeal to all Germans to buy to the extent of thier ability to aid in the circulation of money was issued today by Kurt Schmitt, minister of economics, simultaneous with disclosure that the Bank for International Settlements has been petitioned for a liberalization of bank dealings.

The filing of the petition with the International Bank at Basel, Switzerland, was revealed by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, in explaining the object of the granting of additional credits intended to revive business and assist in unemployment relief. The Reichsbank, he said, has applied for the abolition of foreign control and greater freedom in bond market operations.

The Economic General Council yesterday announced approximately $173,000,000 had been made available for repairs of business houses and homes in the joint business and unemployment campaign.

Schmitt likened the economic situation to a sick man being buoyed up only by injections.

Dr. Schacht said sufficient funds are on hand at the Reichsbank to sustain business without inflation, but that the institution should have the benefit of an open-market policy such as that exercised by the Federal Reserve System and the Bank of England.

Bituminous Coal Output Totals 7,125,000 Tons

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended September 16 as about 7,125,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1932, 6,145,000 tons; 1931, 7,320,000 tons.

Detroit Exchange Is Ordered Sold

Detroit, Sept. 22 (AP).—Sale of the Detroit Stock Exchange building at public auction if the delinquent payments on a claim held against it by a life insurance company are not settled by February 18, 1934, was ordered today in Federal Court.

The decision was given in a suit brought by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., against the Union Co. of Detroit, parent corporation for the stock exchange building, the Union Guardian Trust Co., and the Detroit Stock Exchange and its building corporation.

The building, the insurance company contended, was pledged by the Union corporation in 1931 as security on a $125,000 loan from the insurance company. Payments due last March have not been made, the insurance company declared.

L. & N. R. R. President Finds Traffic Gaining

New York, Sept. 22.—W. R. Cole, president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, according to the Associated Press, said today that business conditions in that carrier's territory looked "very satisfactory."

"Our passenger traffic," he asserted, "has picked up rapidly in the first six months of the reduced fares. We are extending the reduction for another six months from September 30, feeling that it would be wise to test it for a year." No joint action for a cut in basic passenger fares is planned by Southern roads, Mr. Cole said.

Wheat Declines Slightly After Strong Rallies

Aggressive Buying Offsets Extreme Break; Inflation Stand Is Awaited.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—Notwithstanding strong rallies at times, wheat today finished at a moderate net loss after an extreme new break of 3½ cents following yesterday's 5-cent collapse.

Aggressive fresh buying which developed in wheat when extreme setbacks had tumbled the market down to 10½ cents under the week's high point, appeared to be based largely on belief that the bulk of liquidating sales were ended for speculators who recently had bought because of supposed liquidation of uncontrolled inflation.

Much of the new buying was attributed to domestic milling interests, but for at least the time being the volume proved insufficient to lift wheat to fully even again with yesterday's final quotations.

Wheat Closes Nervous.

Wheat closed nervous, 1⅛ to 1⅝ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ off to ¼ up; oats, ¼ to ¾ advance, and provisions, 5 to 15 cents down.

Wheat showed considerable strength at the start and scored fractional gains, but soon met with an outburst of selling which was generally regarded as a carry-over from the general liquidating movement that late yesterday overwhelmed the market.

Rebounds of more than 3 cents ensued from the day's bottom figures, but traders continued to be more or less disturbed by absence of any definite official statements relative to what course might be taken at Washington as to inflation.

Buyers on Setbacks.

Many purchasers on setbacks in wheat prices, however, assumed the position that inflation might soon cease to be the main factor after current market adjustments were completed. Such traders predicted that the administration's crop-control methods would come more to the front and that reduced acreage and curtailment of commodity production would prove effective as a stimulus. Lighter primary receipts of wheat and a good demand for actual grain, particularly feedstuffs, were also effective in stemming declines. Some selling on wheat price rallies here was to close spreads between Chicago and Minneapolis.

Corn and oats developed relative firmness compared with wheat. Country offerings of corn to arrive were curtailed, and there was buying resulting from assertions that corn might be included in the Government's plan for purchasing $75,000,000 of foodstuffs for the needy.

France Seeks Wheat Market In Other Lands

Bumper Crop to Provide Surplus After Feeding French People.

Paris, Sept. 22 (AP).—France, with a bumper crop, is looking abroad for markets for more than 7,000,000 bushels of wheat.

This is the amount the minister of agriculture estimates must be sold abroad of the 40,333,000-bushel surplus of the 1933 harvest.

Prospects of North and South American sales of wheat in France during 1933-34 are nil. A tight lid is clamped down on the import market and there are no signs that any foreign wheat will be permitted to be sold here until the domestic surplus is liquidated.

This year's domestic harvest is estimated by the department of agriculture at 341,000,000 bushels. North Africa—Algeria, Morocco and Tunis—will ship into France proper about 9,166,000 bushels.

Excess Supply Seen.

These supplies, added to a carryover of 44,000,000 bushels from last season, assure France of a winter with 394,166,000 bushels of wheat—more than the population is expected to consume.

Bread eating is on the wane, but the minister of agriculture calculates that 309,833,000 bushels of wheat will be ground into flour during the coming winter and spring and 36,666,000 bushels will be needed for seed.

The minister counts on a normal carry-over next year of 7,333,000 bushels, which would leave a surplus of 40,333,000 bushels. Of this amount, officials say that about 7,333,000 bushels will have to be exported and the remainder be used for cattle feed.

Good Return Studied.

The Government, forced by a threatened farm revolt, has taken a series of desperate steps to assure a good return to the wheat grower. Parliament has fixed the price of wheat at not less than $1.65 per bushel at the farm, and is subsidizing exportations at the rate of about $1.15 per bushel. Dumping of wheat began in July and the ministry report says that 2,600,000 bushels have been sold abroad under this plan.

Markets have been found in Switzerland, Holland and England, at around 60 cents per bushel. Thus the public treasury bears more than a dollar for every bushel sold at 60 cents.

Encouragement has been given to farmers to use lower grade wheat for feed, and to cut acreage allotted to secondary grains, such as oats and rye.

Discontent is widespread in spite of this price-fixing plan and the export subsidy. Grain merchants claim that they are being driven from business and numerous farm organizations protest that they can not find buyers. Violations of the 31.63 minimum price have been uncovered. Some producers have been forced for various reasons to sell below that mark and others say they have been coerced by dealers.

NRA Expected To Improve Tire Practices

New York, Sept. 22.—The belief that complete elimination of unsound policies in the automobile tire industry is not to be expected, but that material improvement will follow adherence to NRA rulings is expressed by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, in a current survey which continues in part:

"The tire industry recently has shown a tendency to revert to cut-throat competition, perhaps a result of the larger than seasonal drop in sales in the past two months. Having acquired heavy inventories of casings at low prices, mail-order companies, it is reported, again are offering liberal trade-in allowances, and free inner-tubes, &c., threatening to disrupt the marketing division.

"As prices for first and second line casings were successively raised between April and July, many motorists refused to pay the widening spread between these grades and the lower-priced goods. In view of the record number of old vehicles in use, a definite demand has appeared for third-line casings, and it is now expected that manufacture of this quality will continue, even after the NRA code for the trade is in effect. Fourth-line casings probably will be dropped.

"It is believed that final agreement on a code of fair competition will lead to further price revisions, necessitated by rising costs."

NRA Brings Boom To Adult Playthings

New York, Sept. 22 (UP).—The NRA is booming the use of playthings, as well as reemployment.

Orders for games and funmakers for adult use have jumped 20 per cent since the Roosevelt program swung into action, and the sharp upturn in sales indicates that the leisure promised by the New Deal indicates a 1933 bill for grown-up play well over last year's $30,000,000 total.

Advance orders show that the 1933 trend in adult play is following the trend in women's fashions, and reviving Victorian favorites for fireside play. Checkers, chess, rubber quoits, diablo, top spinning, miniature bowling, billiards, ring toss, parcheese and carom are among the parlor sports of the gay nineties that are best sellers. Redesigned in de luxe packages, they are high fashion.

The fad for jig saws has died down; although there is a steady market for the intricate, hand-cut puzzles by the true devotees of the art.

New Screen and Stage Attractions Are Passed Upon Approvingly by Reviewers

A Varied Bill Registers Hit At Loew's Fox

"THIS DAY AND AGE." Paramount picturization of a story by Bartlett Cormack, featuring Charles Bickford, Judith Allen, Richard Cromwell, Ben Alexander, Fuzzy Knight, Bradley Page and a supporting cast of juveniles. Directed by Cecil B. De Mille. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

It is highly probable that if the methods employed by a youthful vigilance committee to extract a confession from a homicidal gangster in a noctural roadside court of justice in this stirring picture were subjected to the dispassionate processes of the law, they all would be thrown out of court.

For purposes of emphasizing the implicit faith which Mr. Cecil B. De Mille imposes in the youth of America as a safeguard against the ravages of racketeering, gangsterism and other prevalent abuses of the social code, however, the judicial devices of "This Day and Age" are not only theatrically effective but eloquently and excitingly efficient.

In addition to being a thoroughly exciting treatment of a subject that is already perhaps a little hackneyed on the screen, this suggested solution of a majority of the metropolitan evils under which the United States is laboring at the moment is heavily charged with an hysterical emotionalism that frequently mistakes sheer foolhardiness for sober courage and crass daring for sound procedure. It is unfailingly fine theater, but not always good sense.

A Travesty of Justice.

The scene is any city in America. The pivotal events are those centering in the murderous activities of a night club operator who runs his dive as a blind to conceal his major occupation of racketeering the cleaning, dyeing and pressing industry. Apprehended almost red-handed by the regularly constituted municipal authorities during "boys' week" in the conduct of the city's affairs, this hoodlum is released from custody with almost an apology from the bench by the usual clever trickery of a high-priced "mouthpiece." Then the city's outraged youth take things into their own hands.

Organizing all of the high school societies into secret agencies for the elimination of Garrett and his gang, the town's adolescents kidnap their prey, spirit him away to an old brickyard and by dint of a little expert marksmanship, some accurate lariat throwing and the convenient proximity of a fine old tree, suspend the culprit over an abandoned well which they have with rare foresight filled with seemingly millions of half-starved rats. By this method of coercion they force a confession of all his crimes from the man the law was unable to touch.

Discreet Direction.

Mr. De Mille has directed this turbulent tale with what, in the circumstances, amounts to a reasonable degree of restraint. If there were to be raised the point that "This Day and Age" might be construed as an incitement to mob rule and something of the invisible methods of the K. K. K., it could always be contended that the boys and girls in Mr. Cormack's vigorous fable had justice and the spirit, if not the letter, of the law on their side.

It is all tremendously thrilling and, as has been remarked, interesting and unusual "theater."

The cast has been selected with a fine eye to their capability for the job in hand. Charles Bickford, as Garrett, is a sufficiently ominous and brutal killer to make all that happens to him at the hands of the youngsters seem not half enough. Richard Cromwell, Judith Allen and Ben Alexander rank foremost among these earnest advocates of stern remedial action and are surrounded by a long list of players no less skillful, if at times less conspicuous in the action. Among these supporting hosts are Harry Green, Eddie Nugent, Mickey Daniels, Bradley Page, Wade Boteler, Fuzzy Knight, George Barbier, Warner Richmond and Charles Middleton.

The Boswells Star.

Topping the stage bill for the sixth anniversary celebration are the incomparable Boswell Sisters, Connie, Martha and Vet, who never have been more charming or more brilliantly melodious than yesterday afternoon.

Their numbers are without exception chosen with rare judgment and sung with a delicacy and finesse that are genuinely distinguished. Among their songs are "We're in the Money," "That's How Rhythm Was Born," "Stay on the Right Side" and "Lazybones," which they have arranged in most pretentious manner. Connie's two solo numbers are "This Time It's Love" and "The Talk of the Town." A ne plus ultra act.

Monroe and Grant, trampoline experts—meaning gymnasts on the bounding web—may perhaps be most immediately identified by "Go ahead, Sharlie; Sharlie, go ahead," their "gag" line for years. They open the vaudeville bill hilariously and are followed by Leon Navara, former local master of ceremonies and a concert pianist far above the usual level of the casual vaudevillian at the keyboard. His program ranges from Chopin to the current "hot" tunes, all played with superlative artistry.

Herbert Faye and Company present a diversified miniature revue, replete with comedy, songs and dances to complete a stage entertainment of well-sustained excellence.

Phil Lampkin's medley overture of the outstanding hit tunes that have featured the Fox Theater's six years of operation and the Fox Movietone News round out a program that makes a happy birthday week a foregone conclusion.

"TORCH SINGER." Paramount picturization of the story, "Mike," by Grace Perkins, adapted to the screen by Lenore Coffee and Lynn Starling, starring Claudette Colbert, with Ricardo Cortez, Charles Grapewin, David Manners, Albert Conti and Helen Jerome Eddy. Directed by Alexander Hall and George Somnes. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Claudette Colbert here becomes the beneficiary of a sagacious variation of the mother love theme that has served so long and so tearfully as a basis of screen drama.

In addition to those lachrymose qualities so dear to the hearts of feminine sentimentalists, "Torch Singer" extends its appeal through the wide range of a real catholicity of taste by affording intervals of romance, comedy, music and gayety along with its bathos.

Through it all, Miss Colbert comports herself with a new and potent allure. One would hesitate to attribute it to the Mae West influence, but there is an element of sinister seductiveness in Miss Colbert's impersonation of the outraged Sally Trent, who becomes a toast of the blades and the pariah of the housewives as Mimi Benton, the most notorious songstress of the night clubs.

Deserted by the man whom she thought she loved, compelled by a bitter penury to place her baby daughter in a foundlings home, the new Mimi Benton set about the task of collecting her debt from society by fair means or foul. By merest chance she stepped into an emergency in a broadcasting station one day and became an immediate sensation as "Aunt Emma," specialist in bedtime stories for small children. No great penetration is required to foresee that through this agency Mimi finds her baby, her baby's father and once more becomes the Sally Trent she always has been at heart.

There is in this combination of circumstances and events a sufficient diversity of emotional, comic and musical outlet to enable Miss Colbert to bring her most versatile performance to date to the screen. She does a thoroughly workmanlike and delightful bit of pretending in making the torch singer come to life as a believable, if contradictory, character. She dresses the part magnificently, and has never been more beautiful, unless it was in the expansive plunge of asses' milk in the regal splendor of Mr. De Mille's "Sign of the Cross."

Her supporting ensemble is comprised of experienced players of high repute, first among them Ricardo Cortez, in a less reprehensible role than he is accustomed to play, and, second, David Manners, the renegade lover, who turns up again toward the end to prove the possession of a heart of gold.

Among those in lesser assignments are Florence Roberts, Helen Jerome Eddy, Charley Grapewin, Virginia Hammond, Albert Conti, as a smart supper club proprietor; Cora Sue Collins and Baby LeRoy.

His second week's stage program proves conclusively that Phil Spitalny was holding out on us last week. Maestro Spitalny and his Golden Rod Orchestra, for the second week of their local engagement, offer an extraordinary program of sharply contrasted numbers, every one of which is of unfailing audience appeal, and which, in combination, yesterday afternoon won a response that amounted almost to an ovation.

Program of Contrasts.

Opening with a medley of Victor Herbert melody gems—the Neapolitan Street Song, from "Naughy Marietta," "Kiss Me Again," "Little Gypsy Sweetheart" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life"—introducing further evidence of vast skill in orchestration and arrangement and the superb voices of Ethel Pastor, soprano, and Nick Cosentino, tenor, the orchestra next moves into the syncopated rhythms of "The Bugle Call Rag." This would seem to be almost contrast enough in itself, but is nothing compared with what follows in the rousing rendition of a musical comedy medley, a jazz transcription of Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody" and Ravel's "Bolero."

These are all arranged to present most unexpected interpolations of voice, string choir, brass family, harps and pianos, individually and in various combinations. Ethel Pastor, Sig. Cosentino, the Male Octet, concertmaster Concert and the other solo artists all come in for a full measure of appreciation and applause.

This week's program offers conclusive proof that Spitalny is in a class by himself in the adaptation to modern needs of a sound and complete musicianship.

Stan Kavanaugh, Australian juggler, and one of the most dexterous, who has gone strangely silent; the Allen and Kent Four, tap, broken rhythm and hard-shoe clog dancers, and Gracie Barrie, serving in the dual capacity of mistress of ceremonies and chanteuse, are the other stage luminaries who add luster to a bill that is completed by orchestral overture, a distinctive Vitaphone musical, "The Operator's Opera;" Graham McNamee's Universal News and a Looney Tune cartoon, "Bosko's Picture Show," one of the best ever made.

Bing! Goes the Harmony!

When Bing Crosby, aided and abetted by a little trombone tooting, a dash of guitar twanging and a thump or two on the bass drum, lets his quavering barytone have its way, there is apt to be much, but hardly "Too Much Harmony"—even if that is what they call his latest starring film, coming to the Metropolitan Theater next week.

Palace

"PILGRIMAGE." Fox picturization of a novel by I. A. R. Wylie, adapted to the screen by Phillip Klein and Barry Conners, featuring Henrietta Crosman, Heather Angel, Norman Foster and Marian Nixon, with Hedda Hopper, Charles Grapewin, Robert Warwick and Betty Blythe. Directed by John Ford. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Mother love, that most inexhaustible of all themes, forms the structure upon which the story of "Pilgrimage" is built.

Brick by brick, stone by stone, the pathetic and age-old tale of Hannah Jessup becomes a mighty structure of motion picture art in the portrayal of the life of a mother whose love, instead of being the beautiful, self-sacrificing, maternal feeling of fable and poem, is the grasping, selfish emotion we so frequently and tragically find in real life.

Hannah Jessup was a "good" woman. She read her Bible, she kept her house together and worked on the farm, and she loved her son with a love so powerful and deep that it finally destroyed him.

As a Gold Star Mother, Hannah goes to France and there she learns the true meaning of devotion. She returns to take up her life in a more sympathetic manner and to welcome into her heart and home her son's fatherless child and the girl who should have been her son's wife.

It sounds very trite, doesn't it? Not until you see Henrietta Crosman's interpretation of the role of Hannah Jessup can you realize the depth and beauty that may be embodied in the character of a person who might be your next-door neighbor and a story so fraught with human interest that it could be a page from every-day life.

Veteran Star Scores.

Henrietta Crosman is a veteran actress of stage and screen. Her acting ability has reached the point where it has ceased to be acting and becomes perfection of characterization. There are times when her voice, which is of the capacity to fill the last row balcony of any theater, is a bit too loud and harsh for the sound-screen, but after all, Hannah Jessup was no shrinking violet and we soon grow accustomed to the gruffness of tone that expresses the determined personality.

A notable supporting cast adds greatly to this story by I. A. R. Wylie. Norman Foster is the son who seeks to free himself from his mother's shackles. Marion Nixon is charmingly earnest as the girl he loved. Hedda Hopper, Betty Blythe, Robert Warwick and Charles Grapewin are other "old-timers" who turn in finished performances.

Auxiliaries.

Added attractions include an "Our Gang" comedy, entitled "Bedtime Worries;" an animated cartoon called "Boo-Boo, Theme Song," featuring the Funnyboners, of radio fame; the Metrotone News gives its usual interesting glance at world events and brings the bill to a successful climax.

Columbia

"SHANGHAI MADNESS." Fox picturization of a story by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, featuring Spencer Tracy and Fay Wray, with Ralph Morgan, Herbert Mundin and Eugene Pallette. Directed by John Blystone. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Out of that melting pot of the Far East, Shanghai, anything might come, and, so far as the cinema is concerned, about everything has come. But as with other equally prolific sources of story material, the screen frequently springs a new version of a well-known tale, and this time it is "Shanghai Madness."

Shanghai and its environs is, perhaps, one of the motion picture's golden gifts, for in this heterogeneous conglomeration of peoples and things happenings that would seem quite outlandish take on the aspect of actualities.

So, when Lieut. Patrick Jackson, U. S. N., disobeys orders and destroys a Communist fort as a punishment for firing on a United States destroyer engaged in rum-runner chasing it is quite all right. And when Pat engages as gunner on a boat running rifles and ammunition up the river for an army engaged in fighting the Communists it is still all right.

On a return trip Pat's crew rescues an American mission attacked by Communists, saves the girl friend and is ultimately reinstated in the Navy. And, surely, that, too, is quite according to Hoyle.

Unusual Treatment.

In two especial respects "Shanghai Madness" is remarkable. In the first place, it is largely depicted through episodes—with the dialogue spotted as a sort of entr-acte between the exciting events. In the second place, and even more important to the narrative, the love interest is literally dragged in—and it stays by the sheer force of Fay Wray's determination.

In the role of the ousted naval officer, Spencer Tracy does a splendid job, every point in the development of which has been carefully thought out.

As the Chinese gun-and-ammunition man, Ralph Morgan has a small, but flawlessly portrayed role. Eugene Pallette, as captain of the gun-runner, glosses another dramatic part with a delightful, some times lusty, comedy. Herbert Mundin, as Mr. Pallette's third officer, handles in his own particular way most of the straight comedy.

An excellent line-up of subsidiary attractions is headed by Moran and Mack in "Blue Blackbirds," a comedy that easily tops all previous shorts made by these burnt-cork artists. The Terry Toon, "Grand Uproar," is quite that. The Paramount Sound News completes one of the Columbia's most satisfying magic lantern shows.

Metropolitan

"I LOVED A WOMAN." First National picturization of David Karsner's novel, featuring Edward G. Robinson, Genevieve Tobin and Kay Francis. Directed by Alfred E. Green. Reviewed, second week, Friday afternoon.

Nicely acted—perhaps better than it deserves—"I Loved a Woman," which started the second week of its run yesterday, depicts not a great love story, as its title might indicate, but a great struggle between art and business in which art loses and, finally, business does too—to the tune of billions.

Atmosphere of the 90's and the Spanish-American War, World War profiteering, and an Insull-like debacle with Hayden finally an indicted fugitive in Athens all have their part in the too-long story.

Genevieve Tobin is splendid in a subtle, deep and flawless characterization of Martha Hayden, wife to John, while Kay Francis is beautiful and convincing in the rather brief role of Laura.

The faculty will attend in formal academic costume.

Mrs. McPherson Packs Theater for N. Y. Debut

New York, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—Standing before a brilliant backdrop depicting an Angel in a stained-glass window, Aimee Semple McPherson made her debut today at the Capitol Theater. The house was packed and a dozen policemen kept crowds moving on the sidewalk outside.

Radio Waves and Ripples

Robert Bell Longstreet, above, ran a radiocasting studio in Hagerstown until Washington's WJSV gave him an announcing job yesterday. Contender for the 1933 "Miss Radio" title is Rosemary Lane. She and a sister, Priscilla, sing with Fred Waring.

BUSINESS among radiocasters is fast returning to the 1929-30 levels.

First to report a decided trade upturn was NBC's Vincent Callahan here yesterday.

Within the next few days, according to Callahan, National's Washington twins, WRC and WMAL, will broadcast local commercial programs at the rate of 60 a week. That means jobs for 100 Washington performers, a talent pay-roll of about $1,000 a week.

This year advertisers are buying programs of their own. Last year, for the most part, they bought what the trade knows as "spot" announcements, advertising of not more than 100 words microphoned during studio-paid programs.

Of the 60 so-called local radio shows, 15 will go from NBC studios here to the southeast network for the exclusive consumption of Richmond and other cities of the chain. Violet Wachter's "Doors," the Mayflower Ensemble, George Reid's One-Man Minstrel, the Madrillon, Maxim Lowe, Club Michel and Emory Daugherty orchestras, the Modernaires and the Three Aces have been picked for Dixie towns.

Whitecaps Tonight.

WRC—Under Bridges of Paris, 7:30; Spy Drama, 8:30; Rolfe's Saturday Night Dance Party, 9. WMAL—Three X Sisters, 5:30; Waldorf Astoria Orchestra, 7; Cuckoo Program 9:30. WJSV—King's Henchman, 6:30; Elder Michaux, 7:15; Secretary Ickes' address at World's Fair, 8:15.

WJSV signed a new announcer yesterday.

Longstreet's home town is Asbury Park, N. J., where he entered the radio business after graduation from Lehigh in 1927. He set up the Hagerstown station, now inoperative by reason of much litigation, after further broadcasting experience in New York.

He will act chiefly as aid to Robert Trout, whose duties as chief announcer lately have multiplied excessively. His first assignment was WJSV'S Sun Dial.

WMAL will pick up Fred Buchholz's celebration of the Nats' pennant winning at the Occidental from 9 to 10 Monday night.

President Roosevelt's chief speechmaker, Postmaster General Farley; Mississippi Senator Pat Harrison, Missouri Representative John Cochrane and an Assistant Secretary of the Treasury will do most of the talking. To Roe Fulkerson has been assigned the job of running the show. A Myer Goldman orchestra with Fred East and Bill Raymond also will be on hand.

All this mystery about World Series broadcastings is the baseball moguls' way of showing the network heads how tough they could be if they really wanted to. Also, it's to get as many fans as possible inside the park. The moguls act mysteriously every year about this time, and then at the last minute Commissioner Landis tells the studio people to go ahead.

Speeches of President Roosevelt and Cardinal Patrick Hayes, Archbishop of New York, at the closing dinner of the National Conference of Catholic Charities in New York October 4 will be broadcast by Columbia and N. B. C.

Both networks will also carry news of the conference and the celebration of the centenary of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, starting October 1.

Speeches by Alfred E. Smith, Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to Washington; Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, and by Mayor John O'Brien, and a paper by the Very Rev. William J. Kerby, of Washington's Catholic University also will be heard.

John McCormick, making his first public appearance in the country since the marriage of his daughter abroad, will share the microphone with the President and the Archbishop.

Waves.

For some months WRC's Dixie Harmonies show has been confined to the singing of Negro spirituals. N. B. C. has decided that popular numbers must be vocalized when the program is switched to the southeast network Wednesday.

To help listeners appreciate the change, continuity will portray the Harmonies performers as applying for jobs in a New York night club, singing popular hits during a try-out.

Columbia was upset by the reported signing of Cuba's current president, Ramon Grau San Martin, for a Havana broadcast last night. Whoever did the signing, if any, forgot to tell the New York bosses about it.

That A. B. S. inaugural through WOL Monday night will be boosted by well-known broadcasters from the older chains. Some are Paul Whiteman, Rudy Vallee, "Roxy," Major Bowes, Al Jolson, Jules Bledsoe, Belle Baker, Earl Carroll.

A Joe Cronin-Boss Clark Griffith interview is scheduled for an N. B. C. network Tuesday night at 6:45 from WRC in Washington. A New York baseball expert is being sought.

Giants Favorites in Opener, But Nats Are Choice to Take Series

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

AMONG other things the Nats proved this season was the truth of that old bromide about "It's the good team that wins the close ones."

Winning the close ones has been a fetish with the Nats all year, and therein lies the tale of the Nats' pennant conquest. When it came down to a proposition of one run, the Nats had it, fashioned it by that extra something that Joe Cronin gave the 1933 ball club.

Fifty-three times this season the Nats engaged in battles that were decided by one run. And 36 times they emerged triumphant. Thus, with a bit of rapid calculation, we discover that Washington lost only 17 of its 53 one-run games in winning the pennant, which is a slight indication that it is a good ball club, as the old saying has it.

Yankees Felt Sting.

They drew the life blood from the Yankees in 7 of the 10 games between the clubs that saw one run as the winning margin, thus beating down their most serious opposition in the greatest test of every ball club—these games which hang in the balance on every pitched ball, every batted ball, every throw to a base.

Nine times the Red Sox tasted defeat at the hands of the Nats by one run. Once they beat Washington by a run. Thus the figures which show Washington winning 18 out of 22 games with the Boston Club this season bear the trace of a white lie, for 10 times the Red Sox battled the Nats to a one-run finish, and were not the push-overs that the won-and-lost columns indicate.

Eleven times the Nats and Indians clashed in games decided by a solitary run, and six times the Nats triumphed. Three times they waged similar battles with the White Sox, and twice they triumphed. Seven times in 11 games decided by one run they beat the Tigers. Five out of eight they won from St. Louis. They had only one battle of the type with the Athletics and won it.

Crowder Won Eight of Them.

Al Crowder won eight and lost four of those games decided by a run, Jack Russell won seven and lost two, Walley Stewart won seven and lost one, Earl Whitehill won six and lost two, Monte Weaver won three and lost one and Bob Burke broke even in two games decided by a run.

Those one-run victories combined with their famous last-ditch stands lifted the Nats to ultimate victory. Their last-minute punch turned 8 of 12 extra-inning games in their favor.

Cronin Plans No Scouting.

Joe Cronin is making no plans to scout the Giants during the waning days of the regular season before the two clubs meet in the world series. The young manager pooh-poohed the idea emphatically and added a few very definite opinions of his own concerning the subject of scouting.

"It's too risky," said Cronin. "You're taking an awful chance when you attempt to get a line on a ball team in a week of scouting. You're liable to go wrong about a few things and then it will be too bad for your ball club.

"There have been too many cases where managers and coaches have scouted the world series rivals and advised the pitchers how to throw to certain batters on the other club. Too many times the pitchers have followed their advice, thrown the sort of a ball expected to fool a particular hitter, and bam! there goes your ball game.

"We'll learn what we can about the Giants in that first game and make the rest of our plans accordingly."

Brouillard Stops Heuser.

Both of Heuser's eyes were cut by the Worcester titlist's terrific hooks and he had little vision left when Johnny Buckley, his manager, announced his surrender. Brouillard weighed 163, 7 pounds less than Heuser.

Los Angeles, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—Harvey D. Snodgrass, former national amateur tennis champion and later coach of the University of California tennis teams, obtained a divorce today from Mrs. Frances J. Snodgrass.

Roosevelt to See Nats Battle Giants

Divided Loyalty to Force Sitting on Both Sides.

Washington's capture of the baseball pennant is "all to the good," so far as President Roosevelt is concerned, he said yesterday as he promised to attend at least one game of the world series.

"All to the good. If you want to, you can use that in quotes. I'm going to at least one game of the world series and will sit on both sides of the field."

Peacock Ties With Lunn For Title

Roger Peacock, defending champion, had cracked up badly on the stretch, and had muffed a 4-foot putt on the home green to finish the 72-hole grind with a 304 total. Peacock was Lunn's closest rival.

Needs a Par 4.

It was then necessary that he get his par 4 on the 440-yard eighteenth.

Lunn split the fairway with his drive. It landed in a clover. He faded his second to the right of the green. And there was still a chance. He had to pitch dead now, but his path to the carpet was beset with bumpy turf. Lunn played the ball for a roll. It stopped 12 feet from the pin, and with victory or a tié hanging in the balance, Lunn went boldly for the hole and missed by inches.

Peacock wound up with 79, 75, 71, 79, while Lunn posted rounds of 78, 79, 70, 77. The 18-hole playoff is slated for 1 p. m. today.

Sutherland Third.

Three shots back of Peacock and Major R. K. Sutherland at the start yesterday morning, the Chevy Chase youth picked up a stroke on the champion by shooting a brilliant 34, 36—70, one below par. Peacock had to rifle a 71 to keep ahead, while Sutherland soared to an 80 to lose his chances. Sutherland, Army and Navy star, sewed up third place by scoring a 75 in the afternoon.

Wanted—A Wrestler! Wife and Police Hunt

Boston, Sept. 22 (AP).—Police and wrestling promoters joined today in a search for George McIntyre, former University of Pennsylvania athlete, known to wrestling as Paddy Mack, who has been missing since September 12. Mack's wife reported his absence to the police and has communicated with wrestling promoters in Syracuse, N. Y., and Columbus, Ohio, in an effort to gain their aid.

Mack wrestled in Syracuse on September 12 and was scheduled to appear in Boston September 19. He failed to return to this city.

Cronin Maps His Hurling Program

Seeks to Keep Pitchers on Edge During Off Days Next Week.

Prizes Congratulatory Wire Received From Joe McCarthy.

JOE CRONIN'S first 24 hours as a successful pennant-winning American League manager were yesterday divided among his old haunts at Griffith Stadium, a movie film, and his bachelor apartment where he pored over the remainder of the Nats' schedule with an eye to keeping his pitchers on edge for the world series.

Three off days for the team during next week troubled Cronin no little in his plans to groom his Big Four mound staff of Crowder, Whitehill, Stewart and Weaver for the tests with the Giants starting at the Polo Grounds October 3.

Originaly the youthful manager had planned to work his rookie pitchers in the remainder of the Nats' six games, but he has now revamped his program and Crowder, Whitehill, Stewart and Weaver will take at least one more regular turn on the mound to guard against a dulling pitching edge.

Weaver Faces Macks.

Monte Weaver, who was ailing for two months in midsummer, and came along in the stretch finish to provide the Nats with their best pitching, is slated to face the Athletics today in the first of a two-game series. Weaver's name has entered the world series discussion less than any pitcher on the Nats' staff, but Cronin long ago affirmed his intention of relying on the former professor in at least one of the series games.

Huge sheafs of telegrams and congratulatory messages greeted Cronin on his visit to the ball park office yesterday morning. Those he most prized were from Joe McCarthy, manager of the second-place Yankees; from Connie Mack, Walter Johnson and Eddie Collins.

To the youth who deposed him as a pennant-winning manager, McCarthy wired: "Congratulations, Joe. I'll be pulling hard for you in the world series."

Cronin only laughed at the report that he had declined $1,000 per week for a personal appearance vaudeville tour purported to have been made by a theater chain representative in Washington yesterday.

"I'm not an actor; I'm a ball player," said Joe. "I'm thinking nothing but baseball right now, and we've got plenty to think about. I'm not satisfied yet. I will be after we beat the Giants."

Wants to See Giants.

"You're going to beat the Giants, Joe?"

"Did I say that? I'm not making any rash predictions. You can't underestimate that ball club. I'll be able to tell better after the first couple games, after we get a look at Hubbell's screw ball pitching."

Out at Griffith Stadium, world series plans went on apace with the office force making headway through the voluminous heaps of applications for seats, all of which, if honored, would fill the ball park three times over.

Fans already allotted tickets are now being notified, although the pasteboards will not be ready for distribution until Tuesday when successful purchasers will call at the Griffith Stadium office for their seats.

It was a day off for the entire ball team. A half dozen dropped by Griffith Stadium to pay their respects to the ball park for no reason at all.

D. C. Woman Gets "Ace" on 2d Try

When is a hole-in-one not a hole-in-one? Playing with the Washington women's team in a match with Baltimore women yesterday at Rolling Roads Country Club, Baltimore, Mrs. C. M. Stone drove her first ball out of bounds on the fourth hole tee. She tried again, and her second shot trickled into the cup for a birdie.

Hubbell Is Like Mathewson On Mound

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP).—Just what does this brilliant four-man pitching staff of Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Freddy Fitzsimmons and Roy Parmelee possess that the Giants could wing so steadily through the National League and come down to the world series with the Washington Nationals almost even money to win?

The answer comes from players who have hit against them, from men like Coaches Tom Clark and Frank Snyder, old-time catchers, who have helped in their development, and experts who have watched them day in and day out through a trying pennant race. In tabloid form, it goes like this:

(Herewith is the second of a series of articles comparing the rival positions in the coming 1933 world series.)

ADORNING first base in the 1933 world series will be a pair of performers who will give the Nats and the Giants not only ample but brilliant protection in the field and wield a powerful influence in the batting order.

Joe Kuhel vs. Bill Terry. No rivalry more pleasing to the eye is likely to project itself into the series. The dashing player-manager of the Giants versus the talented young infielder of the Nats.

The figures speak for themselves. Kuhel and his .995 fielding average shades Terry by two points, with both conceded to be the outstanding first basemen of their individual circuits in defensive ability.

Edge at Bat Terry's.

With the bat, the edge is Terry's, a finely drawn edge. The Giants' manager is maintaining a .326 batting average compared to the .321 percentage of Kuhel. Thus the first basemen in the two line-ups present an engaging problem for the pitchers.

Kuhel steps into the world series at the peak of a sensational development with the Nats, who purchased him in 1929 from Kansas City despite a $30,000 price-tag. His fielding skill has always been taken for granted from the moment he first gave battle to Joe Judge for the first base job with Washington, but there was doubt as to his ability in major league pitching.

Kuhel Develops.

And within two brief seasons, Kuhel has demonstrated to the satisfaction of all that he can hit big league pitching with a vengeance. Today he leads all the Nats in home runs for the season with 11. And he is known to the American League as the most dangerous sixth-place hitter in the circuit. On five other clubs, he would be the clean-up slugger.

Terry's appearance in the series will not be new to Washington fans who saw him understudy for Long George Kelly in the memorable 1924 series when he was a rookie from Memphis, a reformed pitcher, who lumbered a bit around the first sack, but who couldn't hit.

Terry Brushes Up.

And in those nine years Terry has brushed up on his fielding until he is now recognized as a deadly enemy of ground balls, shifty around the bag. His hitting, under the weight of his managerial duties, has been affected somewhat, compared to his lofty average of 1932, when he led the league.

But he is hardly the fielder to compare with the cat-like Kuhel, who has no rival in his ability to get the ball on a runner around first base. Like Kuhel, Terry is an excellent target for the infielders' throws and if there are balls to be cooped out of the dirt in the 1933 series, Terry and Kuhel will scoop them up with all the skill of a couple of great first basemen.

300 Students Strike In Doctor Bill Dispute

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 22 (AP).—Three hundred boy students of Pittston High School went on strike today because the athletic association has announced it will not pay doctor bills for football injuries.

The school football team discontinued practice on Wednesday when its members learned of the association's action, and the walkout today was in sympathy with the team. Only about 12 boys attended sessions.

Biloxi Marks Nats' Triumph; Telegrams Deluge Griffith

WASHINGTON'S pennant triumph reverberated yesterday in the little town of Biloxi, Miss., spring training headquarters of the Nats, which responded with an outburst of spontaneous enthusiasm fully equaling the carnival spirit which pervaded Washington on the occasion of the Nats' first league championship, in 1924, but which was missing here this year.

A half-holiday was declared and the sleepy little Mississippi town, which is receiving its first taste of reflected world series honor, was galvanized into electric awakeness with parades and accompanying side attractions. Bands blared, speeches were made and from the antics of the Biloxiites, one would have gathered that each and every

Hubbell Gets Edge Over Slab Foe

More Money Being Put on Washington Than on New Yorkers.

Doyle Says Bets in 1933 Will Surpass Those of Other Years.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (U.P.).—Washington is favored to beat the New York Giants in this year's world series, according to quotations announced tonight by Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner.

Doyle quoted 7 to 10 against Washington winning the classic which opens at the Polo Grounds on October 3 and 11 to 10 against the Giants.

In other words, persons betting on Washington to win will receive 7 for 10 risked if the Nats take four of the possible seven games, while Giant backers would receive 11 for their 10 in case of a New York victory.

Giants 1st Game Choice.

A peculiar feature of Doyle's prices is that the Giants are favored to win the opening game, although Washington is the series choice. Doyle offers 4 to 5 against New York for the first game and even money against the Nats.

Discussing this angle with baseball writers at his Broadway billiard parlor, Doyle explained that no team facing Carl Hubbell, the Giants' screw ball king, for the first time can be a favorite to win that game. He said Hubbell is sure to pitch that contest.

"Here is a pitcher," he said, "who not only has everything a great pitcher must have, but this season's record shows so many shutouts and one-run games to his credit that anyone would be rather foolish to lay odds against him."

Supply and Demand.

Doyle quotes the Nats as favorites to win the series, although it's his personal belief that the Giants will win. He bases his betting quotations "upon the law of supply and demand," he said. There's more money being offered on Washington than on the Giants, "although I expect the odds to shorten almost to even money before the first game."

The ancient little Irishman respects the Giants. They cost him a lot of money this year. In his preseason quotations Jack offered 20 to 1 against their copping the pennant, and he claims he took too

Springsteel Runs Good Race, Beating Snap Back by 3 Lengths in Graw Feature

Tipton Rides 3 Winners For Day

(By Staff Correspondent.)

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 22.—The Black and Red of the Labrot Stable, a keen disappointment when backed into favoritism earlier in the day, was the whole show in the oddly-named feature race here today—The Middle Classes. The colors were on the back of Jockey W. Saunders. Saunders was on the back of Springsteel, and the rest of the field was in back of the horse. In fact, Snap Back was back some three lengths when the judges circled the winner's number and Clotho was another length away.

Springsteel did the principal running all the way. There was a brief period during the dash past the clubhouse when the gray horse was a neck off Dyak, but once in front, he fairly flew the remaining distance. Saunders lost his hat during the race, but many of the customers lost their shirts on him and In Clover in the second race.

10,000 Fans Present.

The crowd was up to yesterday's proportions, some 10,000 watching the program. The betting, which showed a jump yesterday, was strong today as several favorites made good.

The Coe Stable and Jockey Johnny Bejshak broke into the winning column for the first time at the meeting, when Bronzed, a promising filly, graduated from the maiden ranks in the opener. The public was aware of the ability of this youngster, and she justified the heavy play. Close to the pace set by Red Bage and Flying Wind, Bronzed moved to the front in the stretch and scored a nose victory over Red Bage. Red Jug was a fast-closing third.

Two Straight Victors.

Bejshak made it two straight winners, guiding Candescent home in the second race, which was marked by the dull running of the Labrot entry of In Clover and Leonie. Neither figured. Candescent opened up a lead on the backstretch and coasted over the finish line. Landsman won the place battle from Aske. The winner was second choice and paid $7.40.

Hillsborough put up a rousing finish under the handling of Tipton to take the third race from Loughport and Clear Knight. A trailer in the field for most of the sprint, Hillsborough did his real running when straightened out for home, and the favorite players cashed at even money.

Aegis Is Winner.

The third favorite of the day cashed when the bad-legged but honest Aegis led home a group of eight claimers over the mile and 70 yards', course. Considerate contested Aegis for a half and folded. Tipton, who had the mount, was familiar with the shortest way around and took it, winning from Chief's Troubador by a length and a half. Considerate managed to stagger into the third money.

Madge's Fellow closed well to take the sixth race from Lazi Canter, while Footsure, a paddock tip, sped past George Jessel to win in the final. Both were well played.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The annual cricket series between crack teams of England and Australia is played for the strangest sports trophy ever known—the ashes of the game itself. The trophy itself does not exist, although its historic substitute, a small earthen jar filled with ashes, may be seen in the long room of the Marylebone Cricket Club.

The "ashes" trophy tradition was started as a jest in 1882, when the English team failed in what appeared to be an easy chance to win over the Australians. The Australians won by a narrow margin when the nglish muffed their chances to take the lead. The following day, in the London Sporting Times, this epitaph apepared:

"In affectionate remembrance of English cricket, which died at the Oval on 29th of August, 1882. Deeply lamented by a large circle of sorrowing friends and acquaintances. R. I. P. (N. B.—The body will be cremated and the ashes taken to Australia.)"

The saying immediately took with English sportsmen and the following year the English team went to Australia to "bring back the ashes."

Australian sportsmen, not to be outdone, prepared an earthen urn, filled it with ashes and presented it to Ivo Bligh, later Lord Darnley, when the team arrived at Melbourne. Lord Darnley kept the "ashes" until his death, when they were presented to the Marylebone Cricket Club.

11 Race Today For $10,000 At Graw

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 22 (Spl.). Eight colts and three fillies have been named to face the barrier tomorrow in the renewal of the $10,000 Potomac Handicap, a race that may go a long way toward settling the 3-year-old championship.

The mile and one-sixteenth test probably will have as its favorite Samuel Riddle's War Glory, winner of four stakes, including the Lawrence Realization and the Dwyer. He faces a mighty shifty field and will have to be at his best. Top weight of 126 pounds has been assigned this son of Man o' War, and he gives from 2 to 26 pounds to his rivals. Mrs. Dodge Sloan is believed to hold a strong hand. Over a muddy course she would depend on Inlander, while Okapi should run well if the track remains fast, as predicted.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace Race Track.

F-I-V-E W-I-N-N-E-R-S! Yea, Bo! And how well I love to have to tell it. Mrs. Bennings' bashful lad slipped you Bronzed, $5.40; Hillsborough, $4; Aegis, $4.20; Springsteel, $6.20, and Madges Fellow, $10. Add to those a big percentage of other horses in the money, and it was a profitable day from an At The Post standpoint. True, I had favorites. However, I can only name them. I can't control the mutuels. Today, I am shooting for price at several points along the program. And I have good reasons. If I don't have five winners again, please don't sue me. BILL.

First Race—Topple should have won his race here. Was blocked and knocked back, but finished fast enough to barely miss taking the purse. The stable intends to give Renick the mount today. He has won with the horse. Adamite was nursed along around Chicago. May go well. No Doubt was thought to be a good one early in the spring.

Second race—Murmuring, with a good rider, would be a threat if not the winner in this race. Reported to be a fit youngster. Gets my take-a-chance wager. Le Miserable and Doeskin for the rest.

Third race—Hadagal and High Quest are hard to separate. I prefer them in the order named. Both are primed for a fast heat. The improving Chiestraw for the show end.

Fourth race—I don't know what the excuse will be for that last effort if Pencader tak

Catholic U. Gridmen Score 2 Touchdowns, Maryland None, in Test Scrimmage

Liner Plays Smeared In Drill

Seven or Eight New Men to Get First-Team Call at G. W.

TWO football teams went out to practice yesterday afternoon—and Catholic University scored two touchdowns and Maryland scored none. Not even when the Cards' second team was on the opposite side of the ball did the Terps go over the goal line. The Brookland eleven simply was too tough for its College Park neighbors.

Curley Byrd, senior member of Maryland's coaching board, and, to all appearances, still chief of the field staff, harangued his men on blocking throughout the session, but to no avail. Bill Conter, Phil Gross and Johnny Lyons burst through Maryland's line time and time again, smearing its running plays to the unconcealed discomfort of Old Line coaches.

Gene Augusterfer directed Catholic's attack. The Cards soared over the home eleven's goal line in 10 plays the first time it took the ball. Maryland braced for the second advance, held briefly, and then fell into violent confusion as Augusterfer sent Tom Gearty spinning off tackle on a reverse. Charley McVean replaced Augusterfer when Maryland took the ball.

After watching the freshmen shove the varsity all over the field for the first 45 minutes' scrimmage, Coach Jim Pixlee announced seven or eight new faces will be seen on the first team at George Washington next week. "Tuffy" Leemans and Nig McCarver saved the Colonials' regulars from an utter rout, by going over for five touchdowns in the last 15 minutes of scrimmage, but Pixlee was much dissatisfied with his regulars' work.

Georgetown's slim squad was even slimmer yesterday as four men nursed minor hurts. Nick Viskovich is on the shelf with a bad eye; Fred Callahan's injured wrist prevents him from doing heavy work; Frank Williamson is nursing a strained back muscle, and Mack Stanley is handicapped with an ailing wrist.

From police headquarters comes the word that the scalper will not be molested provided he keeps to his hole in the wall. He must under no circumstances solicit people along the street and must transact all business under his roof. Any scalper disobeying these stringent ordinances will be liable to the District police.

The Internal Revenue Department requires a license, setting the tax scale high and collecting 10 per cent of the sales price. So the scalpers are not getting away with a great deal.

Buffalo Wins Crown, Beats Red Wings, 8-1

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 22 (AP).—Before a capacity crowd of 20,000, with thousands turned away, the hard slugging Bisons tonight won the International League baseball crown by defeating the Rochester Red Wings, 8-1, and winning the fourth game of their four out of seven series.

Hal Schumacher, right-hander—His favorite is an overhand sinker, also unique. He gets it by snapping his entire arm like a buggy whip, the ball comes up low, then drops straight down as though it had rolled off a table. Hitters have been topping it all season, rolling into easy double plays. When the sinker isn't working, Schumacher usually is belted out swiftly. The strain of the pitch has tired his arm greatly. He needs considerable rest.

Freddy Fitzsimmons, right-hander—Another fellow with a toss the hitter's say no one else possesses, a fast knuckler. He's John McGraw's choice as pitching hero of the series, a veteran whose only weakness is a tendency to irritation and loss of effectiveness if something goes wrong behind him. He's a heady pitcher, but has shown a tendency to tire lately.

Leroy Parmelee, right hander—Suffering right now from a slight case of "nerves" because his fireball, which jumps inward, has broken bones in the hand or arm of Randy Moore, of the Braves, and Stanley Hack, of the Cubs, both left-hand hitters, in the past month. Both Terry and McGraw believe he'll be the greatest pitcher in baseball some day. He lacks just enough control and polish to make him a doubtful starter now.

Giants Favorites To Take Opener

Sees Betting Increase.

Doyle said there will be more betting on this series than any previous classic—the number of bets will be larger, although their total amount may not establish a record.

"This series has caught on," he concluded. "The clubs are evenly matched; have plenty of color and fight; they're managed by young devil-may-care chaps who take big chances to win. It's the big wagering series—and we and our agents throughout the country have had more early inquiries than on any previous series."

The odds are 11 to 5 against the Giants winning the first two games straight, and 13 to 5 against Washington. It's even money against any individual player making a home run during the series.

Gude and Brower to Race On Program Here.

The Potomac Boat Club's annual regatta, postponed last week because of rain, will be held, starting at 3 o'clock, this afternoon. The feature position is occupied by the single shells Potomac River championship, in which Granville Gude, five times winner, will be faced with unprecedentedly stiff opposition in the person of Paul Brower.

Brower, who is also a member of the Potomac Boat Club, has won the association singles championships in the Royal Canadian Henley and the senior singles in the New England Rowing Association's rowing regatta so far this year. Gude has competed only in the Southern regatta, which he lost.

Purse Held Up, Mat Arbiter Suspended

"Cyclone" Burns Penalized and Zaharias Told He Must Redeem Self.

A WRESTLING REFEREE was suspended indefinitely and a wrestler had his purse held in abeyance yesterday as a result of action instigated by Matchmaker Joe Turner following George Zaharias' brawl with Jim McMillan at Griffith Stadium Thursday night.

"Cycloe" Burns, veteran arbiter, was penalized for his laxity in dealing with Zaharias, whose alleged foul tactics enabled him to win over McMillan. Simultaneously Zaharias was told that he must first redeem himself before receiving one cent for his services in that bout.

Promising McMillan a "new deal" in referees and warning Zaharias that a repetition of the incident not only would result in further financial punishment, but also would be accompanied by a suspension of six months' locally, Turner yesterday had completed negotiations for a new match between these rivals for next Thursday night.

Trigg and Stam In Surprise Net Win

THE doubles team of Hugh Trigg and Colin Stam scored the first major upset of the Wardman fall tournament yesterday by defeating the Dooly Mitchell-Tony Latona duo, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4. The losers led, 4—3, at one time in the final set, but erred themselves right out of the picture.

The end came so suddenly and was so unexpected that few of the spectators who had assembled on the Wardman courts were aware of what had taken place until some time after the match was over. Most of the watchers were absorbed in other matches, and the upset was achieved without benefit of gallery. The losers committed numerous errors.

The Sard-Bassett combination defeated the Grimes-Martinez team, 8—6, 2—6, 7—5, to capture the finals in the women's doubles. The match was closely contested throughout, but was not generally considered as an upset, as the smooth functioning Sard-Bassett doubles team is generally rated above the team they defeated, despite the acknowledged individual superiority of Miss Grimes and Mrs. Martinez.

Yesterday's Results.

Men's doubles: Hermann-Buchanan defeated Garnett-Burwell, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2; Trigg-Stam defeated Mitchell-Latona, 3—6, 6—2, 6—4; McElvenny-Charest defeated Baker-Newgarden, 6—3, 6—0.

Women's doubles, finals: Sard-Bassett defeated Grimes-Martinez, 8—6, 2—6, 7—5. Women's consolations singles semifinals: Johnson defeated Whitfield, 6—2, 6—1; Black defeated Bodony, 7—5, 6—1. Finals: Black defeated Johnson.

Although not greeted by holidays and parades, outside of Biloxi, Washington's victory in the pennant race was the signal for a deluge of congratulatory telegrams and telephone calls.

From William Harridge, president American League—"Heartiest congratulations on the Washington Senators' victory in the 1933 American League championship race. I know the team will give a good account of itself in the big series and bring home the honors for our organization."

From John A. Heydler, president, National League—"Congratulations to you, to Manager Cronin and the members of Washington's new champions."

From Jacob Ruppert, owner of Yankees—"Congratulations to Manager Cronin and yourself on your splendid victory. Now go ahead and win the world series."

From Connie Mack, manager of Athletics—"Congratulations on your well-deserved victory. No one is better pleased at your victory than yours truly."

From T. A. Yawkey, owner of Red Sox—"Congratulations on clinching pennant. American League certainly has typical representative for world series. Certainly glad you are in. Best of luck for the series."

From Walter Johnson, manager of Indians—"Sincerest congratulations on the winning of the American League pennant. Since Cleveland couldn't win, Washington was my next choice. It will seem strange not to be wearing a Washington uniform, but no spectator in the stands will be pulling harder for Washington's cause than me. Playing the kind of baseball they have all season, another world's championship should come to the American League. Please extend my congratulations to Joe Cronin and every member of the team for the splendid fight they made."

From George Stannus, president, Biloxi (Miss.) Chamber of Commerce—"The wininng of the pennant by the Washington Baseball Club brings to the people of Biloxi and the membership of the chamber of commerce a great joy. We are celebrating your wininng of the American League pennant by a proclamation declaring a half-holiday. Please extend every member of the team—from Frankie Baxter to General Crowder—our sincere congratulations and our best wishes for the winning of the approaching world series. Will see you soon."

Baltimore Poly Bows, 20-0, To Tech

Pisani's Play Is Key to Victory; Passes Help Hardell Eleven.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 22 (Spl.).—In a contest that was largely dress rehearsal for both teams, McKinley Tech, of Washington, perennial District of Columbia champions, conquered Polytechnic Institute at Homewood tonight, 20 to 0. Both coaches used substitutes freely, and seemed more seriously concerned with assaying players in actual combat than in winning the game.

Coach Hardell brought over a squad somewhat weaker in veteran strength than usual. Only three letter men from last year were available, but these included Quarterback Pisani, who led the Capital team to its triumph. Twice he hurled long forward passes to team mates for touchdowns, and on the other occasion placed the ball in scoring position on a 19-yard run on a spinner play.

Only one first down was scored by Poly, and a five-yard penalty figured in this. One forward pass was completed by the locals for a four-yard gain.

Baltimore Representatives Defeated, 53 to 34, as Mrs. Clark Stars.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 22 (Spl.).—Washington links women scored an impressive victory over Baltimore players in an intercity match today at the Rolling Road Golf Club, the count standing 53 to 34. The locals won the spring contest in the Capital by a single point.

Mrs. David Clark, member of the Army and Navy Club, Washington, and Virginia State champion last year, equalled the course record of 82, held by Virginia Holzderbero. Teamed with Mrs. H. R. Quinter, they gave the visitors twelve points by defeating Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson and Mrs. M. Louise Bell. Mrs. Clark's card:

Although nineteen points separated the teams, the outcome was uncertain until the last of the ten foursomes returned.

An unusual mishap occurred on the first hole of a contest when the ball of Louise Claytor, Chevy Chase hit Mrs T. E. Schluderberg's caddy on the green, costing the latter a penalty stroke and the loss of a chance to halve the hole.

15 Days' Leave Given Firemen And Policemen

Comptroller General Also Rules 1932 "Leftover" May Be Added.

District policemen and firemen are entitled to 15 days' leave for the current year plus any unused leave up to 15 days for 1932, Comptroller General McCarl ruled in an opinion handed down yesterday for the District Commissioners.

"It is understood," the Comptroller General wrote, "that the calendar year is the leave year for policemen and firemen of the District of Columbia. Their right to receive annual leave of absence with pay was not suspended by section 103 of the economy act. Section 215 became effective as to them June 30, 1932.

"Therefore, they are entitled to a total leave credit of 15 days for the current calendar year, plus any unused leave for the calendar or leave year 1932, not to exceed the difference, if any, between the amount of leave taken during that year and a total of 15 days."

This last sentence of the opinion is construed to mean any leave which was not used in 1932 may be added to the leave allowed in 1933. The opinion will affect nearly 900 policemen and 1,350 firemen.

The report of the Comptroller General also denied that a District Court of Appeals opinion that the term "Government" did not include the District government applied in the leave question.

The Commissioners pointed out that an earlier opinion of the Comptroller had included the District government in the general term "Government," and cited the Court of Appeals decision.

Motorist Sought After Woman Dies

Disappears When Victim Sent to Hospital.

A motorist who forfeited $25 collateral for reckless driving was sought early today following the death of a woman from injuries suffered in an auto accident. Agnes Richardson, 48, colored, 37 Q street northwest, died last night in Emergency Hospital.

She was a passenger in an auto that collided with a car said to be operated by George H. Walter, jr., Alexandria. The accident occurred September 13 in front of park police headquarters on Constitution avenue. Walter was booked at the Third Precinct station after being treated at Emergency for scalp lacerations.

Park police ordered Walter transferred to Gallinger Hospital but there is no record of him there. When the case was called for trial he did not appear and the collateral was forfeited.

"Fast Town, This!" Say Two Jailed

Arrested after only an hour here, Robert C. Brown, of Lebanon, Pa., and John J. Monahan, of Cleveland, were taken to headquarters for questioning. Police asked them about theft of a suit of clothes from a department store yesterday.

"This is a fast town," Monahan complained, as they led him in to be fingerprinted. "Here we have been in town about an hour, and now we are arrested."

They were taken in custody by Precinct Detectives C. A. Ambrose and H. G. Wanamaker.

7 Tax Delinquents Haled Into Court

Failure on Returns Laid to 2 Women, 5 Men.

District Commissioners yesterday in District Supreme Court started legal actions against two women and five men to compel them to file personal property tax returns for the year ending last July.

The Commissioners assert the seven persons "refused or neglected" to file returns for tax assessments.

Those named were Mrs. E. K. Webster, 1914 Connecticut avenue; Miss R. S. Treadwell and Lee B. Mosher, both of Wardman Park Hotel; David T. Maloney, 3820 Cathedral avenue; Bernard Germann, 2722 Connecticut avenue; W. R. Curran, of the Westchester apartments, and W. P. Cullinane, 3017 Cathedral avenue.

U. S. Building Repair Work Starts Sept. 25

Repair work on public buildings, for which funds recently were granted by the Public Works Administration, will begin September 25, James F. Gill, chief of the buildings branch of the Office of Public Buildings, Parks and Reservations, announced yesterday.

Repairing and pointing stone work of the Land Office Building will begin September 25. Similar work will start on the Patent Office Building September 26. The repair program at the State Department will start September 27. Repairing third floor exterior doors of the Navy and Munitions Buildings will begin September 26.

Building Owner Sued In Boy's Fall to Death

Charles H. Lee, administrator of the estate of his 2-year-old son, James Lee, filed suit yesterday against Charles M. Nash, of the Shoreham Building, for $10,000.

Through Attorney Leon Pretzfelder and Edward L. Marthill, the father said Nash owned a building at 14 O street northwest, where his son fell to his death last May through an unguarded stairway.

Unexpected Caller Arrives With Loud Crash

The Thomas Patterson family, 505 K street northeast, received a rude awakening last night when the car of Donald McRae, 51, Landover, Md., plunged over hedge and into their front porch. McRae was held on a charge of reckless driving.

Courtrooms Of D. C. Scored As 'Deplorable'

Mrs. Norton Writes Ickes Demanding Speed on Municipal Center.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, yesterday urged the Public Works Administration to allot funds at once for construction of the first unit of Washington's proposed municipal center.

In a letter to Secretary of Interior Ickes, Mrs. Norton declared quarters now provided local courts "deplorable," and demanded the administrator house them more properly.

"There is not a more important project to be considered at this time," she wrote.

If funds are provided, the District plans to locate the police, municipal and juvenile courts, the recorder of deeds and registrar of wills office and headquarters for police and fire departments in the new municipal center.

Mrs. Norton invited Ickes to visit the present courthouse.

"You will agree with me when you have inspected this building that it is a disgrace to our Government," she wrote. "I feel certain that with your record of progressive service you will join those of us anxious to secure this building, by placing it as one of the projects of major importance to be considered at this time."

$3 Weekly Stipend Protested by Wife

Mate's Income $10,000, Claims Mrs. Harry Hall.

Alleging that her husband, Harry Hall, has an income of $10,000 a year, but allows her only $3 a week for all her personal expenses, Mrs. Alice E. Hall yesterday asked a limited divorce.

Through Attorney Raymond Neudecker, she also asked the court to enjoin her husband from disposing of his assets pending settlement of her case. The suit charged that Hall has deposits of $50,000 in local banks.

Mrs. Hall declared her husband offered her $1,000 if she would let him get a divorce in Nevada.

Stabbed in Fight.

Mental Aid!

Wife Keeps Dr. Einstein's "Feet on Ground."

Dr. Albert Einstein, father of the theory of relativity, can not go walking on the campus of the California Institute of Technology without his wife, J. Ernest Smith, former member of the faculty, told members of the Future Millionaires' Club at Capital City Commercial College yesterday.

Rum Murder Near Solution

Confronted with the second murder within the week, police yesterday planned a concentrated drive on Washington's underworld.

George E. Darnall, acting chief of the homicide squad, refused to reveal the source of information leading police to believe they are near solution of the case.

Investigation into the shooting of Salvatore Fusco, 52, found with a bullet in his chest in Patterson's woods Thursday, was almost at a standstill, the homicide squad admitted.

With the collapse of clews that Fusco was an alleged member of a liquor ring, police say they have little to work on.

"Unloaded" Gun Fired By Friend Wounds Boy

Shot when a revolver thought to be unloaded was discharged by a companion, Steven Smith, 16, colored, 1840 Kendall street northeast, was reported in a serious condition in Casualty Hospital last night from a bullet wound in his abdomen. The gun was discharged by Solomon Burkley, 17, colored, 1662 Montello avenue northeast. Burkley told police they had found the revolver.

Work Permit Slash to Give Jobs to Adults

Action of School Board Also to Increase Attendance.

School attendance will be increased and new jobs created here as the result of the Board of Education's decision to lend full cooperation to the NRA.

Miss Fay L. Bentley, director of school attendance and work permits, said yesterday at least 100 youngsters who have held full-time work permits will be obliged to return to school, and that several hundred more will lose the income that comes from working after school hours and on Saturdays.

Under the NRA, children under 16 can work only three hours a day for employers not engaged in mechanical or manufacturing work. This, Miss Bentley pointed out, will cause dismissal of many minors with both full-time and part-time jobs, and the employment of older persons.

Any families that will be rendered destitute by the loss of income from a young brother or sister will be brought to the attention of relief agencies, she said.

The first week of the new school year ended yesterday with an enrollment of 82,908 pupils, 1,066 more than were enrolled at the end of the first week last year.

Of the public school list, 54,414 are white and 27,428 colored. White high schools have 11,218 pupils, and colored high, 3,600. Eastern is still leading with an enrollment of 2,792. Central has 2,630, McKinley, 2,343, Western, 1,739 and Roosevelt, 1,714.

White junior high schools have 11,051 pupils; colored, 5,200. The white elementary enrollment is 31,393 and the colored 18,142. Registration at the white vocational schools is 655 and at the colored 641.

The white night school enrollment is 5,032, 2,520 boys and 2,512 girls. McKinley is the only night school with more male students, having 987 boys and 896 girls.

10 Aids Asked For Alley Plan

Taking another definite step toward clearance of Washington alleys, Robert D. Kohn, chief of the housing division of Public Works, yesterday requested Frederic A. Delano to appoint 10 citizens to serve with him in directing final phases of housing study.

Alley clearance in Washington has been studied by Mr. Kohn's organization several weeks. Two plans have been formulated: one for low cost housing construction, while the other contemplates actual entire clearance.

Fire Week Backed By Commissioners

Proclamation Asks Citizens to Aid Prevention.

A proclamation asking residents to cooperate in the observance of "Fire Prevention Week" was issued yesterday by the District Commissioners.

President Roosevelt has designated the week of October 8 to encourage "perpetual vigilance and alertness" of citizens in decreasing fire hazards.

"Conservation of resources, both human and material, has always been one of the first obligations of mankind, and to the end that this drain may be reduced it behooves all good citizens to lend their aid," the Commissioners declared.

Elks Take 50 Orphans To Ball Game Today

Green Flayed For 'Deception' By Clerk Unit

Union of Rival Groups Seems Less Likely After Attack.

Hopes for an early merger of the rival National Federation of Federal Employes and the American Federation of Government Employes have gone glimmering in a new attack on William Green by the National Federation.

An editorial today in The Federal News, official N. F. F. E. organ, charges the American Federation of Labor president with "cruel and unscrupulous deception upon Federal workers." The American Federation of Government Employes is an A. F. L. affiliate.

Green was criticized for a recent statement that President Roosevelt hoped to modify the Government pay cut soon. The statement "has given rise to false hopes, and will bring deep disappointment to Government workers who already are distraught because of an endless chain of rumors and counter rumors, of misinterpretation and misinformation," said the editorial.

Holding the law plainly states the cut may be adjusted only every six months, with the present period not ending until January, the editorial declared Green had no right to imply the reductions might be lifted before that time.

Woman, 60, Ill, Faces Trial

Mrs. Purdy Comes Back From Detroit Today on Fraud Charge.

Bed-ridden because of a serious heart ailment, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Purdy, 60, will be brought to Washington today to stand trial on a charge of obtaining $10,000 from Mrs. Florence Means Kay through false pretenses.

Mrs. Purdy and her husband, Dr. Frank L. Purdy, were arrested in Detroit several months ago after a Nation-wide search. Dr. Purdy was brought back then, but his wife's physical condition delayed her return.

The Purdys were indicted after Mrs. Kay told Assistant United States Attorney Charles Murray they got $10,000 from her. She said the money ostensibly was to be used to defray the cost of shipping a huge chest of gold to this country from England.

Mrs. Kay said the Purdys informed her that Mrs. Purdy had inherited a share of an old English estate worth "millions and millions of dollars." It included a chest of gold, she said they told her, and she was asked to put up $10,000 to defray cost of shipping.

An ambulance will meet the Detroit train today and take Mrs. Purdy to Gallinger Hospital. Her husband is in District Jail.

Meade Named Fund Guardian For D. C. Relief

Accountant Will Check Up On Disbursements to Prevent Fraud.

Appointment of William C. Meade was yesterday announced by District Commissioners as bonded disbursing officer of relief payments. Meade, accountant and office manager of the District bureau, is to act as watchdog of funds, against fraud.

His appointment followed a conference between Dr. Luther A. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners; Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, George S. Wilson, director of the Board of Public Welfare, and Leroy A. Halbert, director of emergency relief.

Dr. Reichelderfer said definite procedure for payments would be established, with relief disbursements made by check, instead of cash.

Funds heretofore have been distributed with no bonded official responsible. Hereafter the disbursing officer will investigate before payment is made.

Wilson estimated that in the three-month period ending this month approximately $700,000 will have been spent for relief. This is more than either two three-month periods preceeding, and means that the third to be met by the Federal Relief Administration will be about $233,000.

Halbert reported a slight decrease in demands from the "white collar" class, but said the number of laborers on relief rolls was as large as ever.

Mid-City Group to Meet.

The Mid-City Citizens Association will begin its fall and winter schedule Monday at 8 p. m. at the Thomson School, Twelfth and L. streets northwest. Topics affecting the District will be discussed.

'Pork Barrel!'

D. C. Needy Get 277 Tons of Meat October 7.

In four weeks they will have the task of consuming 277 tons—554,000 pounds—of pork.

District relief officials estimated about 5,000 families will wish some of this meat. This will be 100 pounds per family—and the next shipment is due a month later.

Distribution will be undertaken by the city's relief organization, which is preparing to handle cotton, beef and other commodities which will be available to the needy, as announced by the President Thursday night.

Other forms of relief received by families will not be altered when they accept the pork, Mr. Wilson declared.

Two More Join New Hospital Program Here

Garfield and Sibley Vote to Enter Proposed Group Plan.

At least two hospitals, Garfield and Sibley, have voted to join the proposed group hospitalization program, The Post learned last night. Their action was taken after months of study by a committee of which Joseph H. Himes is head.

Emergency, Columbia, Homeopathic, Episcopal, Providence, Georgetown, George Washington, Garfield and Sibley hospitals were invited by the committee to cooperate in the joint enterprise and it is virtually assurred all will join, Mr. Himes said yesterday.

For reasons not clearly explained, Casualty hospital did not receive an invitation. Miss Elizabeth M. Rogers, superintendent since the death of her brother, Joseph D. Rogers, is in favor of group hospitalization and the hospital supplied data requested by Mr. Himes' committee.

Action by other hospitals is expected in a few weeks. Some boards of directors will not meet until October.

Mr. Himes said he is prepared to name the nine incorporators of the organization to administer group care within 24 hours after a majority of the institutions forward acceptance.

E. J. Henryson of the Council of Social Agencies, recently returned from making a survey of group hospitalization in Newark and several West and Midwest cities.

The movement here gained impetus when the American Hospital Association, in Milwaukee, two weeks ago, recommended its use throughout the country.
